Japan Opposes Neutral Action In China

PREPARING ITS OWN PROPOSALS TO END STRIFE

China Accepts British and American Planks to Terminate Hostilities
GERMANY ASKS PEACE
American and British Women and Children Are Evacuating Nanking

Berlin—(P)—Foreign office circles intimated today that the German government has instructed its ambassador at Tokyo and its minister at Nanking to make verbal representations to the Japanese and Chinese governments in the interests of a peaceful solution of the Sino-Japanese conflict.

Tokio—(P)—Japan is unalterably opposed to any proposal for neutral participation in negotiations regarding Manchuria, Kenkichi Yoshizawa, foreign minister, said tonight after consulting Prime Saito, the oracle of Oktau.

Tomorrow, he said, he will present to the diplomatic representatives of the powers participating in proposals to settle the Sino-Japanese conflict, a reply which will be in the form of a series of counter-proposals, suggesting modification of certain points which Japan finds unacceptable.

The foreign minister talked for two hours with the 84-year-old prince whose advice always is sought when the empire's vital interests are involved, and upon his return went into conference with Premier Inukai.

Japan, he said, refuses to consider the Manchurian problem in the same category with the present situation at Shanghai.

"We are eager to maintain the friendship of the other great powers," he said, "but at the same time we must protect the rights and interests of Japanese citizens in China."

Japan cannot accept the fifth proposal of the powers providing for negotiations to settle Sino-Japanese controversies in the spirit of the pact of Paris, he said, because of the stipulation that neutral observers participate in negotiations which are intended to include the Manchurian issue.

"I intend to permit any third party to take part in the settlement of the Manchurian question is a fundamental principle of this government's policy," he said, "as it has been of former governments."

Nanking—(P)—China accepted the British and American peace proposals today to bring about a cessation of hostilities between herself and Japan.

The acceptance was announced by the foreign office and steps were immediately taken to avoid further fighting shortly after a group of Chinese aviators, with dramatic ceremony, had made their wills and been photographed, resolved to give up their lives in China's defense.

The acceptance was accompanied by an agreement between Chinese and Japanese officials that neither would resort to further hostilities at Nanking "unless provoked." A conference between officials of the foreign office, Chinese military authorities and Japanese consular and naval officials, was held on one of the Japanese warships.

Martial law was declared and the commander of the Nanking garrison ordered Chinese troops and police to make a special effort to protect foreigners. The true alienated public nervousness and fears that a Japanese attack on the city was impending.

In the meantime, the Chinese and Japanese warships in the river proceeded to put distance between them. The Japanese ships moved up the Yangtze and the Chinese ships sailed down the river until they were 8 miles apart with the British and American vessels between them.

The foreign office announced that China had replied to the Anglo-American notes and accepted the proposals as a whole.

EVACUATE NANKING

Nanking—(P)—American and British women and children began to evacuate Nanking this afternoon, traveling by boat to Shanghai. Foreign business men and missionaries had not yet decided to leave the city.

The British river steamer Woomung left with more than 40 women and children, including the families of employees of the American International Export company, the Texaco company and the British American Tobacco company.

Last night this group stayed at the international export plant in the Hsiakwan waterfront district. The steamer was jammed to capacity.

The United States consulate was not advising Americans to leave Nanking but to remain to assist

Chapei Area Again Center Of Warfare

By the Associated Press
Chinese and Japanese troops turned the battered Chapei sector of Shanghai into a bloody and burning shambles again today while the Japanese government at Tokyo deliberated upon the British-American proposals for peace which the Chinese already have accepted.

American women and children, numbering more than 40, were evacuated from Nanking during the day under a truce arranged between Chinese and Japanese authorities.

While airplanes rained bombs on Chapei and the district was swept by sheets of machine-gun fire, columns of smoke poured skyward from a number of new fires lighted in the ruins of last Friday's holocaust. The Chinese troops put up a strong defense and landed several shells from their trench mortars in the Japanese district in the Hongkew section.

Another Japanese landing party of troops made a determined assault on the Chinese forts at Woosung and Poochan several miles down the river from Shanghai while big guns from the Japanese warships in the river shelled and almost destroyed the fortifications.

U. S. Cruiser Arrives

The United States cruiser Houston, flagship of the Asiatic fleet arrived in the Whangpoo river while the forts were being shelled and was halted temporarily to avoid conflict within the line of fire of the Japanese guns. Afterward, with its 300 marines aboard, it proceeded up the river and anchored at Shanghai.

The foreign office at Tokyo announced Japan's reply to the peace proposals of the powers could not be delivered before tomorrow. Foreign Minister Kenkichi Yoshizawa went from Tokyo to Okutsu to consult with the octogenarian Prince Saito, last of Japan's elder statesmen. The decision on the proposals also would have to be ratified by an extraordinary session of the cabinet, it was announced.

In official Japanese circles doubt was expressed that it would be possible to bring about peace by the proposals as quickly as it would be brought about by force as a result of the fighting at Shanghai.

The German government, official circles indicated, instructed its diplomatic representatives at Tokyo and Nanking to make representations to Japan and China similar to those of the powers but to avoid anything resembling pressure.

SALES TAX ADVOCATED BY PETROLEUM GROUP

Washington—(P)—The American Petroleum institute today advocated a general manufacturers' sales tax of 1 per cent as the best means of aiding the federal government to balance its budget.

The suggestion was made to the house ways and means committee at hearings on a proposed 1 cent gallon tax on gasoline.

With the manufactured products valued at $60,000,000,000 annually, the 1 per cent tax would net $600,000,000.

NEW CHIEF REVAMPS U. S. BORDER PATROL

Detroit—(P)—Organization of the American immigration border patrol along the entire Canadian border into a single unit with headquarters here was being perfected today by Frank W. Berkshire, newly appointed director of the patrol.

Berkshire arrived in Detroit yesterday from Seattle, where he has been assistant director of immigration for three years. He said there would be six assistant superintendents, each in charge of a district.

NO ADDITIONAL BLANKS NEEDED BY TAXPAYERS

Regular Income Tax Forms to Contain All Necessary Information

Madison—(P)—It will not be necessary for Wisconsin income-taxpayers to file separate returns for computing the emergency surtaxes to be levied for unemployment relief, the state tax commission said today. The emergency taxes are to total about $8,000,000.

Blanks already have been mailed out for making returns under the regular income tax law and these, it was explained, when properly filled out, should provide all the information necessary for computing the regular taxes and the surtaxes.

The difference is that the regular tax is based on the average income for 1929, 1930 and 1931, with the dividends of Wisconsin corporations excluded, with capital gains taxable and capital losses deducted.

The emergency surtaxes will be based on the income of 1931 only, with Wisconsin corporation dividends included and no account taken of capital gains or investment losses.

It is merely a matter of separating the regular taxable income and the 1931 income to be surtaxed. In both instances the rates of taxation will be the same, 1 to 7 per cent.

Commissioner Edward L. Kelley, in charge of the income tax division, considered the advisability of sending out supplementary returns and there have been numerous inquiries as to whether two blanks would have to be filed.

The conclusion was that the regular blanks will have to contain full statements of all income and the exemptions claimed and from these the commission will determine what exemptions are permissible under the regular law and what are not allowed under the emergency relief act.

When it comes time to pay the total bill the separate taxes will be shown.

The $3,000,000 relief bill passed at the special session of the legislature was in Governor LaFollette's office today awaiting the return of the chief executive from an out-of-state speaking tour.

The governor is expected back Friday or Saturday. As soon as he signs the measure, the state industrial commission is prepared to certify the apportionments of the first $3,000,000 of relief based upon 1 per cent of the total income of the cities, towns, villages and counties, depending upon which is legally responsible for administering poor relief. The remainder to the localities will be distributed in proportion to the amounts they spent for poor relief in 1931.

A. J. Altmeyer, secretary of the industrial commission, said today that there are 1,189 local units that will benefit by the 1 per cent distribution. Twenty-six of these are counties. The 1930 census will be used for the distribution.

OFFER ALTERNATIVE FOR LA FOLLETTE PLAN

Washington—(P)—Backing for a giant public works program as an unemployment relief aid was forming today in the senate Democratic ranks as an alternative to the LaFollette-Costigan direct relief plan.

The Democratic maneuver developed as a showdown approached on Senator LaFollette's (R., Wis.) strenuous campaign to force consideration of the $375,000,000 authorization for aiding states to feed and clothe the jobless.

The idea under consideration by the Democratic steering committee is for a $750,000,000 bill, the sum divided equally between road construction and loans to states. It came up in a meeting yesterday but decision was put off until today.

Washington—(P)—President Hoover today signed the $125,000,000 first deficiency bill, to meet emergency monetary needs to the government departments.

Rose Allen Testifies For State In Brother's Trial

Describes Quarrel With Defendant and Events Leading to Slaying

Norristown, Pa.—(P)—Rose E. W. Allen, 18-year-old sister of Edward H. B. Allen, charged with the murder of Francis A. Donaldson, took the stand as a commonwealth witness in her brother's trial today.

"Hello, Eddie," she said as she walked to the witness chair.

Miss Allen was called immediately after Francis A. Donaldson, Jr., father of the defendant, had testified to his son leaving home on the night of the killing in response to a telephone call.

After giving her age Miss Allen said she became engaged to Donaldson last July and that they exchanged gifts. William T. Connor, counsel for the defense, objected to the admission of this but was overruled by the court.

She related calmly a conversation with her brother in which she quoted Eddie as saying that if Donaldson "came around here I'll blow his head off. I'm running things around here, and if you don't like it you can get out."

She then told how she left her home after an argument with her brother over his authority.

"What did your brother say to you when you left?" asked the district attorney.

"He said," the witness replied, "I'll see you at the party tomorrow. Don't forget to give Francis that message."

"What was that message?" she was asked.

"Not to come to the apartment."

Miss Allen related the incidents of the night of the killing.

"He (the brother) told me that Francis was not to come into the apartment again," she said. "I could meet him downstairs in the lobby but he was not to come up stairs."

"I told him I didn't like it and I was going to get out and I asked him who he thought he was that he was running things around there."

"What, if anything, did Edward say after that?" asked the district attorney.

"I think he said he had a gun in the lobby room down stairs in the hotel."

The witness then related a conversation she had about leaving the place. It concerned the question whether she could take the automobile, Edward refusing, saying he had the key to the car. She said she went to her room and packed three suit cases and telephoned the Bellevue Stratford hotel in Philadelphia for a room.

Miss Allen said she went to the lobby of the apartment and waited for Donaldson. She had telephoned him and he came in about five minutes and took her to the Bellevue Stratford. They were joined there by Albert Gallatin H. Lucas, a friend of Donaldson.

After some conversation, she testified, it was decided that Francis and Lucas should go out to the Allen apartment and try to fix things up.

"And that was the last time that you saw Francis alive?" she was asked.

"Yes," she replied amid intense silence in the room.

This concluded the direct examination and court recessed for lunch.

PAROLE REFUSED TO ALBERT FALL

Federal Board Refuses to Reduce Term of Former Interior Secretary

Washington—(P)—Albert B. Fall must stay in prison to the bitter end of the term imposed on him for accepting a $100,000 bribe while secretary of the interior.

Last night the federal parole board declined to shorten his sentence of a year and a day, plus $100,000 fine. The two men and one woman who compose the board announced their decision with the observation that Fall's release now would be "unjustifiable and incompatible with the welfare of society."

Fall, 70 years old, is in the New Mexico state penitentiary at Santa Fe, the first cabinet member in the history of the nation to be convicted of crime. Allowing time off for good behavior, his term will end next May 8, but either the fine must be paid then or he must take a pauper's oath, or he must remain incarcerated for an extra 30 days. He was the only man convicted in the long series of trials which followed the Harding administration scandal of the oil land lease.

Edward L. Doheny, from whom came the $100,000, was acquitted of the charge of giving Fall a bribe.

"Dity," said the board, "is advanced as grounds for taking action which would virtually set aside the verdict of the jury and the judgment of the court. Corruption of public trust in high places, acts akin to treason and affecting the entire nation cannot be tolerated or condoned. The case is one of personal guilt, aggravated by near-perjury in the course of the proceedings leading up to trial and conviction."

The board failed to find any evidence that Fall's poor health was being aggravated by confinement.

MANY JOBLESS ARE FAILING TO REGISTER

Only 243 Unemployed Are Signed by Wednesday Noon at Legion Office

A hint that many Appleton men and women out of employment are staying away from the American legion's job registration office at the city hall is seen in the report up to noon Wednesday, when only 243 unemployed persons had registered for jobs. The majority of registrants are single men or men with small families.

That many men with large families—some of whom are receiving help from the city—apparently are content to do nothing, has been expressed by legionnaires directing the unemployment registration.

Women, too, are failing to register in large enough numbers. It is said. The registrations so far haven't been one third of the number that registered at the Woman's club. Registrants on former lists must register again if they expect to be placed through the legion's man-a-block plan.

Registration of unemployed will continue through the week, the office opening every morning at 8 o'clock and remaining open until noon, and from 1 o'clock to 5 o'clock in the afternoon.

While the registration of unemployed is going on the veterans are perfecting the organization that Monday night will canvass the 600 blocks in the city to secure job pledges which will net each man about 80 cents a day from each household or about $15 a week.

"The canvassing job gives every block a wide range of help," said George C. Dame, general chairman of the legion's unemployment committee, said today, "and we are making a plan to residents in the various blocks to make a survey for us, either the night the legion starts its drive or before."

Asks For Help

"There are a great many persons living in Appleton who can make a tour through their blocks, selling this plan and saving us a great deal of time and money. We'd like to have them help us on the project, for after all the success of the survey determines the success of our man-a-block scheme."

Arrangements for the job survey and pledge drive almost have been completed. Some 200 legionnaires will be used, but the veterans point out that this number is hardly enough. Plans for the survey were made at the Monday evening meeting of the city.

THREE ESCAPE AS AUTOMOBILE SINKS

Car Plunges Through Ice in 25 Feet of Water in Lake Winnebago

Fond du Lac—(P)—Presence of mind and good fortune enabled three men to save themselves yesterday when a coupe in which they were riding plunged through ice in 25 feet of water in Lake Winnebago, off Coldwater beach north of the city.

The men are Norman Fleming, August Tegen and Peter Hansen, all of Fond du Lac.

As the ice gave away and the car started to sink Fleming managed to open one door of the coupe. He swam to the surface. The car settled on the bottom right side up, and Tegen and Hansen opened the other door. Hansen came up under the ice, but his companions were able to reach him. They walked a mile and a half to the shore, but suffered no ill effects.

THREE ROB BOOKKEEPER OF MILWAUKEE FIRM

Milwaukee—(P)—Police today sought three soft-spoken men who entered the thinly-partitioned office of the C. H. Trischman Leather company and robbed Miss Marion Jones, bookkeeper, of $123 while conversation from an adjoining office was plainly audible.

Entering the office yesterday, the three whispered commands to Miss Jones to hand over the money. They wore stockings over their shoes, she said, to prevent noise. They displayed no weapons, she said, but menaced her with what she believed to be pistols in their pockets.

C. H. Trischman, president of the concern, after concluding his conversation in the next room, returned to find Miss Jones collapsed in a chair.

COMMITTEE NAMED TO DISARM PARLEY

Geneva—(P)—The first wheel of the machinery which is intended to slice world armaments again turned today with the organization of the procedure committee of the conference. A widely representative group of 60 nations are attempting to bring the world nearer peace.

The procedure committee was appointed yesterday by Arthur Henderson of Great Britain, president of the conference. Its task is to chart the road which the disarmament parley will follow and to keep the negotiations in that pathway as long as the conference lasts.

MORE THAN $4,000,000 PAID FOR LICENSES

Madison—(P)—Between $4,000,000 and $5,000,000 have been collected on about 300,000 1932 automobile licenses issued to date, Secretary of State Theodore Damman said today.

Due to the advancement of the dates during which licenses may be procured the receipts are far ahead of last year. Whereas the deadline in 1931 was March 15 is set by the legislature to Feb. 1 this year but enforcement will not start until March 1 through arrangements made by Governor LaFollette and Mr. Damman.

ONE-THIRD OF CITY IN RUINS; FIRST ESTIMATES OF DEATHS AND INJURED THOUGHT TOO HIGH

Russ Scoff At Powers' Peace Move

Geneva—(P)—The Russian delegation to the disarmament conference, sitting in haughty isolation today in a British boarding house on Philosopher's road, in the outskirts of Geneva, summed up its reaction to yesterday's attempt to bring about peace in the far east by saying: "It won't do any good."

Yesterday's action of the powers, a spokesman for the delegation said, was only another of the series of fruitless steps taken by the league in recent months, "each of which resulted in a hop skip and jump forward by the Japanese."

"The league always delayed too long," the spokesman said. "While it deliberated the Japanese acted, taking up one position after another in Manchuria. Why didn't the Manchurian commission start immediately when it was appointed last December? Why does it now choose the longer route to China by way of the United States?"

The spokesman for the Russians was emphatic in asserting the Soviets declined to be brought into the conflict, although he admitted they were not committed in yesterday's combine action of the powers. "We never yet participated in any political action of the league," he said.

Pressed for Russia's plan for saving the far eastern conflict, he answered: "Complete disarmament." He called attention to Russia's numerous proposals beginning with the Geneva conference in 1922 and said the nations could not sidestep Russia's challenge this time.

U. S. Navy Rushes to Aid of Cuban Region — Communications Severed

ALL AMERICANS ARE SAFE
Official Announcement Estimates Dead at Six, Injured at Thirty

Washington—(P)—Reports to the navy in mid-afternoon placed the number of dead in the Santiago earthquake at 12, with 250 injured.

Kingston, Jamaica—(P)—A severe earthquake which lasted about eight seconds was felt here today, but there was no damage.

Havana—(P)—Reports from Guantanamo, where it had been feared this morning's severe earthquake may have been destructive, said only minor damage had occurred and that there had been no serious property damage.

Communication had not been established early today with Caimanera, where ships of the American fleet are anchored. There has been a heavy rainfall, and the sea is running heavy.

Santiago, Cuba—(P)—Early estimates of the casualties in a series of earthquakes which struck this city early today were found to be too high with the issuance of an official announcement placing the number of dead at six and the number of injured at thirty.

Property damage was extensive and few buildings escaped unscathed. The walls of a small maternity hospital collapsed and it was reported that a mother with new born twins had been killed.

The first shock, shortly after 1 o'clock in the morning, affected only the business district but word of the quake spread quickly and threw the city into a panic.

Immediately there came a flood of rumors which said 1,500 had been killed and at least as many more injured. When cooler heads took hold the list of casualties melted away.

Mayor Aznar ordered the gas and water service shut off to prevent fire and sent word to Havana that the local authorities could handle the emergency.

Nevertheless United States Army, Air Corps and Navy officials headed for Santiago and relief organizations mobilized their facilities.

Very few Americans live in this vicinity and it was thought none of them had been hurt.

In quick succession lighter shocks followed the first. The walls of the jail fell in, but most of the inmates escaped and those who were not hurt went to work with the police and such troops as were available, cleaning up the debris and standing guard to prevent the looting of wrecked buildings.

The two tall towers of the imposing cathedral were thought to have been cracked and it was feared they might topple into the street.

Vice Admiral Willard sent the following dispatch to the navy at 10:30 a. m., eastern standard time:

Following received from officer sent to Santiago by plane: Arrived at 9:40 a. m. On board yacht Kenkora with American consul. All American cables out of commission. Will call on governor with American consul and let you know in what way assisting force can be of assistance.

"No Americans injured. Estimate ten killed, 200 injured. Consul wishes to deliver a message to Vice Consul Story who is with Dr. Taber. That his family is safe."

Early Estimates

Estimates of dead and injured ranged from a few hundred to 2,000 and approximately one-third of the stone city was laid waste.

There were nightmare scenes of horror as the first great shock brought buildings crashing down upon their occupants and clouds of blinding dust rolled out over the harbor where Richard P. Hobson and his intrepid crew sank the Merrimac during the Spanish American war.

Thousands of men, women and children, spared from death or serious injury in the first shock, poured into the dark and narrow streets in night clothing, stampeding for the comparative safety of the beautiful city's parks and open squares.

Debris and strewn bodies in a frenzied rush for safety the second shock rumbled across the eastern tip of Cuba and others were buried by tumbling stone.

The machinery of rescue and rehabilitation was placed in full operation, however, even before the successive shocks which fortunately showed lessening intensity were over. The military took complete

CHARGE BOOTLEGGING IN PRESCRIPTIONS

Washington—(P)—A charge was made and denied before a senate committee today that "over 50 per cent" of liquor prescriptions issued by doctors are "bootlegging prescriptions."

The statement was made by Dr. Arthur Dean Bryan, head of the surgical department of Rush Medical college of the University of Chicago, and a former president of the American Medical association.

It was disputed by Dr. William F. Lorenz, director of the University of Wisconsin Psychiatric Institute, who said he was "amazed at any one maligning the medical profession to that extent."

Dr. Bryan appeared before the committee in opposition to a bill by Senator Bingham (R., Conn.) to legalize 4 per cent beer.

Dr. Lorenz testified in favor of it.

FACES SEVERE PENALTY FOR SEERING BROTHER

Chicago—(P)—Stanley Montague has admitted he aided the escape of his brother Neil, accused kidnaper and Capone henchman, from the county jail in the belief he would not be punished for the act.

Instead, he was told by the authorities yesterday he would be held for the grand jury and that the jurors would be asked to indict him under a statute providing that anyone helping a prisoner to escape may be given the maximum punishment that faced the fugitive. In Neil's case it was a life sentence.

Japanese Destroyer Sunk By Chinese Guns From Fort, Report

GUNBOAT FIRE POUNDS VAINLY AT GARRISON

Bitter Battle Rages After Japs Make Another Attack on Chapei

Shanghai—(AP)—Chinese guns from the fort at Woosung sent a Japanese destroyer to the bottom of the Whangpoo river, Chinese headquarters here announced tonight. Further than that, the announcement said, the Chinese garrison still held the fort despite a raking fire from Japanese warships in the river.

The Japanese opened fire, apparently without warning and announced after a brief bombardment that the fort had been destroyed and that they saw no signs of life in it. British observers on a troopship passing up the river said, however, that the fort had returned the fire and that it was only by good luck that the troopship was not struck by one side or the other.

Dud shells fell near the U. S. S. Parrott, a destroyer tied up along side the Texaco oil barge in the Whangpoo. Others dropped close to the oil storage tanks of the Texaco company and in the property of the British-owned Asiatic Petroleum company on an island in the river.

Another report said Japanese airplanes flew over the area tonight and bombed a Chinese oil storage plant near the fort, setting it afire. Chinese headquarters said the fort repulsed an effort to put ashore a landing party from the destroyers and in addition to sinking one of the craft scored damaging hits on two others.

At the same time the Japanese naval command repeated its assertion that the fort had been reduced to a pile of scrap iron and that more than a score of the defenders had been killed in the five hour bombardment.

At nightfall the Japanese put out to sea and the Chinese indicated the attack would be renewed.

Battle Rages Since the outbreak of hostilities at Shanghai today as the Japanese land forces and airplanes delivered another smashing attack on Chapei while the Japanese warships in the Whangpoo river rained shellfire on the Woosung forts 16 miles away.

The United States cruiser Houston flagship of the Asiatic fleet, arrived in the river just in time for the battle. It covered a landing party of blue-jackets sent to occupy the landing party of 300 American Marines, was warned not to proceed directly to Shanghai but to stay down the river beyond the forts to avoid entering the line of fire.

Afterwards the cruiser moved up the river to Shanghai and tied up before the city.

The fire upon the forts was directed from the guns of six Japanese destroyers. It covered a landing party of blue-jackets sent to occupy the landing party of 300 American Marines, was warned not to proceed directly to Shanghai but to stay down the river beyond the forts to avoid entering the line of fire.

Observers who watched the battle from a distance said the area was a veritable inferno. At the same time Japanese machine guns directed a steady stream of fire into the concentrations of the Chinese defenders in the Chapei section. Great clouds of smoke rose over the area where the Chinese troops battled desperately.

In the middle of the afternoon Japanese Consul General Mural informed the American and British consuls general that the Japanese were occupying Woosung.

Shells fired from Chinese artillery in the Chapei sector fell in the Japanese headquarters near Hongkong park, in the grounds of a boys' school and on the road leading to a rifle range, but they failed to explode.

Late in the afternoon Japanese airplanes joined the terrific bombardment of the Woosung forts, and a bombardment was also begun on the forts of Chapei. Observers believed that the three forts were doomed to complete destruction and fears were entertained for the safety of the cable heads of the Eastern and Commercial Pacific companies which are situated between them. The Great Northern cable head is located about a mile south of the Woosung fortifications.

There were reports that the Japanese warships in the river were landing nearly a full division of soldiers at a considerable distance from Shanghai and were shelling Chinese reinforcements advancing along the railway from Woosung.

Uncle Sam's most fearsome aerial battleships is this huge "flying wing." Capable of carrying a ton of bombs and a crew of four, at 190 miles an hour, the newly built Boeing bomber is shown above as it arrived at Bolling Field, Washington. The motors are in the wings. Major Willis Hale (at left) flew the deadly craft from Dayton, Ohio, to the capital, where government aeronautical experts gave it a thorough test before its acceptance for the U. S. Army.

GENERAL TAMON PREPARING TO ENTER HARBIN

No Chinese Resistance Apparent as Japanese Get Set for Invasion

Changchun, Manchuria—(AP)—General Jiro Tamon, the man who took Tsitsihar, reached the outskirts of Harbin tonight and stopped there, preparing to enter the city tomorrow with the division of troops he took up from Changchun.

Tamon had come up 30 miles from Shuangcheng on the last stage of the advance and could have entered the city tonight, but preferred to avoid the unnecessary risk of night fighting.

The Chinese forces under Ting Chao had retreated to the east and it looked as though Tamon would be able to take the city without resistance.

The critical situation at Harbin, where severe fighting has been going on for a week between local forces and the troops of General Ting-chao led General Tamon to leave Shuangcheng without waiting for the arrival of another Brigade of his army.

He advanced more than 20 miles during the afternoon. His headquarters at Shuangcheng did not mention the means of his advance, but it was believed he used motor trucks. The temperature was 30 below zero Fahrenheit.

Radio messages from Harbin said the sections of the city where most of the foreigners live were quiet and had not been disturbed by Ting Chao's men who were concentrating on the old city and the barracks of the Chinese Eastern railway guard, where 15 motor buses were held in readiness to retreat as the Japanese approached.

Japanese dispatches said General Ting Chao is determined to oppose the Japanese if they attempt to dominate Harbin, and north Manchuria, although he anticipates he will have to quit Harbin.

Small patrols of General Hasebe's command fought several minor actions yesterday with the Chinese north and south of Shuangcheng. There were few casualties on either side.

Japanese sources said General Ting's men intend to prevent an advance of Japanese troops from Tsitsihar to Harbin and that they destroyed the railway tracks near Anta and Yentungton, between Tsitsihar and Harbin. A westbound international train, these sources said, was compelled to halt at Anta and an eastbound international train halted at Chalanun.

Fire of unknown origin caused damage estimated at more than $5,000 at Sklar's Ready-to-wear shop, 234 W. College-ave, about 3.30 this morning. The fire started in the rilling of the basement and spread to the stock stored there. While the fire to the building was estimated by Fire Chief George P. McGowan at not more than several hundred dollars, Robert Sklar, proprietor of the shop, said that the loss to his stock was a result of smoke damage would be at least $5,000.

The fire was discovered by Miss Dorothy Bitter, bookkeeper at the Sklar's. Firemen answering the alarm succeeded in putting out the fire with the use of chemicals although several water lines were laid and men in readiness to fight the flames.

ROOSEVELT THINKS U. S. SHOULD STAY CLEAR OF LEAGUE

Opposes Debt Cancellation and Advocates Leveling of Tariff Barriers

Albany, N. Y.—(AP)—Franklin D. Roosevelt, governor of New York and candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination, believes:

- (1) The United States should not participate in the league of nations.
- (2) European debts should not be cancelled.
- (3) An international trade conference should be called to level tariff barriers.

Gov. Roosevelt committed his views on these subjects to public consideration at a meeting of the state Grange last night. His pronouncement on the league followed by a few days the challenge of William Randolph Hearst that he announce his views thereon.

As Democratic vice-presidential candidate 12 years ago Mr. Roosevelt worked and spoke in behalf of American participation in a league of nations.

"For that course I have no apology," he said. "The league of nations today is not the league conceived by Woodrow Wilson. . . . Rather, it is a mere meeting place for the political discussion of strictly European difficulties."

Baker View Similar Gov. Roosevelt is the second prominent Democrat to announce himself within recent weeks as opposed to the league. The other was Newton D. Baker, secretary of war in the Wilson cabinet and for many years a staunch proponent of American participation in the league.

Concerning cancellation of debts, Gov. Roosevelt said: "Europe owes us. We do not owe her. Therefore we should call a meeting of our debtors here and not in Europe and demand an understanding. If it were considered advisable in the present condition of world finance to postpone the payment of debts for a while, we should nevertheless insist upon an accord as to when payments should begin and in what amount. Europe has indulged herself in an orgy of spending. . . ."

His comment on the tariff included the following: "It is time for this nation to use a little horse sense about. . . . the results of our present tariff law. It is time for us to sit down with other nations and say to them, 'this tariff fence business, on our part and yours, is preventing world trade. Let us see if we can work out reciprocal methods by which we can start the actual interchange of goods.'"

TWO HELD FOR MURDER TRIAL IN DURAND CASE

Farmer and Employee Jailed in Lieu of $12,000 Bond for Each

Durand, Wis.—(AP)—Mike J. Wachter and his farmhand, Albert Black, were held in the Peplin-co jail today in lieu of $12,000 bond each to await trial in circuit court on second degree murder charges in connection with the death of Wachter's housekeeper, Mrs. Jennie Grant, 40.

They were held for trial at the conclusion of their preliminary hearing late yesterday. Both denied knowledge of the death of Mrs. Grant. Her body, severely beaten, was discovered in a stable on the Wachter farm Jan. 16.

Wachter, who acted as his own attorney throughout the questioning of witnesses, took the stand and described the finding of the body Jan. 17. He said he entered the stable, saw the body, and ran out to tell Black.

"She's cold dead," he said he told Black. "Hell, is she cold already?" Wachter quoted Black asking.

The pair said they spent the previous night at the home of a neighbor, Henry Bilkerback. Wachter said he left his farm at 6:15 p. m., and did not return until noon the next day.

Bilkerback said the men stayed there, but that Balok did not arrive until later than Wachter. He said Wachter told him of Black's jealousy over Mrs. Grant.

R. E. Mason, a private detective, said that during his questioning of Black, the farmhand asked if he would get a lighter sentence if he pleaded guilty.

"He also asked all about Waupun prison and if he could read there, write letters and receive visitors," Mason said.

C. V. Hewitt, a deputy sheriff, testified that he found an undershirt identified as Mrs. Grant's 20 feet from a sleigh on the Wachter farm. The pillow under the dead woman's head and blankets covering her were identified, he said, as having been taken from her bed.

Black did not testify.

STUDY RULES OF AVIATION, PILOTS URGED

Reckless Flying Denounced at Meeting of Aero-nautical Group

Steps being taken by the United States government to protect passengers riding on air mail lines were discussed by C. F. De La Saux, Milwaukee, federal aviation inspector, at the monthly meeting of the Fox River Valley Aeronautical association at the North Shore Country club last night.

The association is composed of about 25 men, including pilots, mechanics and others interested in aviation from Neenah, Menasha and Appleton. James Kimberly, Neenah, is president of the group and Carl Greunke, Appleton, is secretary. Activities of the members center about Whiting airport on Highway 41 between Appleton and Menasha.

Mr. De La Saux predicted that within the next five years all air mail will be under the guidance and regulation of the interstate commerce commission and that inspection work will be turned on by states instead of by the United States.

Qualifications which an aviator must have before he can fly a commercial plane and some of the regulations which must be followed by the big air line companies to safeguard their passengers were discussed by the inspector. He said that on air mail lines fields must be not more than 50 miles apart; receiving and sending radio apparatus must be carried; if night flying is followed the fields or planes must be equipped with landing lights. If the line passes over water the plane must carry life preservers.

Answers Questions Much of Mr. De La Saux's talk was of a technical nature and the members of the association questioned him about various problems which puzzled them. Mr. De La Saux also urged the men to join the United States Flying Corps reserve because of the opportunity it affords for them to gain flying experience.

Members of the group also were urged to carefully study aviation regulations so that they would not unknowingly break any of the rules. He told members that they should make it their duty to see that members of the group who indulge in reckless flying or who break regulations in other ways are called to task. He said this is better than having these men reported to the federal department, because often they could be made to see that they are doing wrong and would correct their actions immediately.

Pointing to the safety of riding as passengers in airplanes Mr. De La Saux pointed out that during the first six months of 1931 there were 991 accidents, 109 of which were fatal, throughout the country. This means, he said, that planes flew 43,676 miles for every accident that occurred, while they flew 337,088 miles for every fatal accident that occurred.

Wisconsin is fourteenth among all the states in the number of pilots, Mr. De La Saux said. The state has 180 licensed and 100 unlicensed pilots; 23 gliders; 120 transport pilots and 4 limited commercial pilots; three glider pilots and 193 licensed mechanics.

After the meeting the members watched several reels of motion pictures taken at Whiting airport and at the Cleveland air races by several local aviators who also are amateur photographers.

SUES FOR $10,000 AS APPENDICITIS OPERATION CHARGE

Waukesha—(AP)—Several pieces of property belonging to Herbert Ripley, wealthy Chicago contractor, were held under a writ of attachment today filed by Dr. Frank P. Purdy, Mukwonago physician, to prevent their sale pending settlement of a $10,000 suit.

The physician claims that amount, plus 6 per cent interest, as his fee for an appendicitis operation performed on Ripley in Milwaukee in 1930. A Milwaukee physician was reported to have performed the operation. Purdy said Ripley refused to pay him the $10,000 on the ground the fee was exorbitant.

RADIO SILENT IN WAR GAME OF U. S. FLEET

Blue Warships on Third Day Advance in Effort to Recapture Hawaii

By CAPT. C. M. AUSTIN, U. S. N. (Assistant Chief of Staff)

U. S. S. California at Sea, —(AP)—Quiet has settled over the radio on this, the third day of the 6-craft "Blue" fleet's advance westward from California's coast.

Admiral Richard Leigh, commander of the Blue forces, has imposed radio silence on all ships of the Blue expedition seeking to recapture the Hawaiian islands from the mythical enemy, the black army and navy at Oahu.

Only one radio channel still is operative, a high frequency, short wave one reserved for use by unit wires accompanying the fleet to the war games.

There is good reason for the radio silence order, for were we talkative, it would be of great aid to the enemy. This is because the compass bearings of our transmissions would give our exact position.

It was not long that the very existence of radio direction finders was a strictly guarded military secret—a secret so well kept that the allies reaped full advantage of it.

Helped British in War The historic example is the use made of the new instrument to inform the British of the sortie of the German battleships on the eve of the battle of Jutland. An increase of German messages always marked an increase in activity of the ships.

That was first noted and the British rightly interpreted the heavy radio traffic as indicating something special on foot. Then, thanks to well placed and numerous direction finders along the coasts of England and Scotland, they were able to get successive bearings of the sources of those messages and to plot the movement of the ship from the inner to the outer harbor and finally to sea.

The same plan was successfully followed in tracking German submarines.

There is another reason, quite aside from disclosing our position, that makes this silence golden to those in our business. In a word, we must assume that the enemy's decrypting boards are in session. A recent book, somewhat sensational, has focused public attention on the art—or perhaps science—of break-

WIFE OF INDIAN PRINCE IS JUST "NANCY" AT HOME

Home Town of Seattle Knows Maharanee as Plain Nancy Ann

BY HAROLD TURNBLAD
Seattle, Wash. —(AP)— The Maharanee of Indore, mistress of palaces in India and France, still is just plain Nancy Ann to her home town.

Four years as the wife of one of the wealthiest princes of the Far East has made little apparent change in the young woman whom Seattle knew not so long ago as Nancy Ann Miller, high school girl.

Queenly tall, dressed simply in black, and retreating and modest in manner, the Maharanee Sharmishtha Holkar exhibited none of the finery and trappings usually associated with royalty when she returned to Seattle for a two week's visit with her mother, sister and grandmother.

"It's nice to be back home," she said, although she added as an afterthought that her "real home" now is in Indore, where she lives in the mammoth and magnificent palace of the Maharajahs, or in the historic chateau of kings at St. Germain-en-Laye, near Paris.

"I'm afraid people don't understand I lead a very normal life," she said. "Being a Maharanee doesn't make one different in any way. Everything goes on just about as if you were someone else."

"I often take care of my babies—bathe them, you know, and put them to bed."

"I'm very keen about bridge. They play a lot of contract in Europe. By the way, who won that tournament between Mr. Culbertson and Mr. Lenz? We were traveling at the time and the reports were awfully late getting to us."

Maharanee chew gum? Of course," she laughed. "In the summer when things are quiet in Paris we often take our guests to Luna Park. It is like Coney Island."

Everyone does the most undignified things—like riding on the roller coaster or throwing for dolls. If I wanted to chew gum or eat hot dogs—why, I would do it. Why shouldn't I?"

Although reluctant to talk of her reputation as a charming hostess, the Maharanee observed that her chateau near Paris "always" has a number of guests.

As India and Seattle Know Her

AT SHANGHAI: AMERICAN POLICY

The most important thing to fix in the mind about the present situation at Shanghai is that the United States is not engaged in trying to enforce the Kellogg Pact or the Nine Power Treaty. Its sole objective is to protect American lives and interests without becoming embroiled in a war with Japan.

The objective implies three main lines of action. The first is to act in concert with Great Britain, France and Italy to put enough ships and troops into Shanghai to defend the International Settlement, and if necessary to evacuate Europeans and Americans who may be in danger.

The second is by concerted diplomatic action to persuade Japan to cease using the International Settlement and Chinese territory contiguous to it as a base of operation.

10 PER CENT OF STATE'S MARRIED WOMEN HAVE JOBS

Census Bureau Report Shows 64,793 Positions Held by "Homemakers"

(Post-Crescent Washington Bureau) Washington—Nearly 10 per cent of Wisconsin's home-makers hold down two jobs, working for a wage besides their nonsalaried work for their families.

This was revealed by a census bureau report made public Wednesday showing that 64,793 or 9.6 per cent of the state's homemakers reported that they pursued a gainful occupation in addition to their home-making duties.

The home-maker is defined as that woman member of the family who is responsible for the care of the home and family. Hired housekeepers were not counted as home-makers," the Census bureau explained in making the report.

By this definition, Wisconsin was found to have 678,205 home-makers when the last census was taken. Of the 9.6 per cent of these home-makers who were gainfully employed, only a small part did their work at home, 53,073 being employed outside as against 11,720 working at home.

BONDS MUST BE SOUND IN ORDER TO MAKE ADVANCE

Changes in Commodity Price Level Effects Only "Safe" Securities

BY GEORGE T. HUGHES (Copyright, 1932, by Cons. Press)

New York—For changes in the commodity price level to be reflected in the market price of bonds it is necessary that there be no doubt about the soundness of the bond. No matter how much the purchasing power of the coupon may increase as it always does when prices are falling, the bond cannot advance market-wise unless there is no uncertainty about the coupon being paid in full and regularly. It is for this reason that the highest grade bonds are most responsive to commodity price changes although those of lower grade are affected more or less.

Here then we have one explanation for the collapse of the bond market in 1931 at the very time commodities were steadily declining. In the mood of the time there was doubt, in greater or less degree, about all obligations regardless of the record of the corporation concerned, the lien pledged, or even the immediate earning position. Confidence was undermined and values were ignored. Bonds fell precipitously in one of the most severe breaks the market has ever seen.

And yet even when prices for bonds were melting away values to the extent that they were affected by commodities were increasing. The cash return to the investor from his bond bought more goods and the holder was that much better off. His real income as distinct from his money income was higher. The capitalist living on the return from his bond investments could not but benefit from the cut in the price of goods just as the salaried man benefited.

The investor living on dividends from stocks and the business man dependent on the profits from trade were injured because dividends were reduced or omitted entirely and business profits disappeared. The point is, however, that the better position of the bond investor was always subject to potential default in payment of interest on his bonds.

This contract called for a fixed return but if the contract was broken all his advantage was gone.

The salaried man prospers in an era of falling prices unless and until his salary is reduced. The stockholder has no contract with his corporation as to continuity of dividends nor does anybody guarantee profits to a merchant. One great reason then for the acute weakness in bonds in 1931 despite the increment in value brought by the downward trend of commodities was that the disordered imagination born of a bear market envisaged universal bankruptcy.

CHEESE FEDERATION HEAD IN REPORT ON FINANCIAL STATUS

Presents Auditor's Findings to Show Losses Reduced to $17,000

Plymouth —(P)— In reply to recent statements referring to the financial status of the National Cheese Producers Federation, Gustave Brickbauer, president, yesterday presented an auditor's report showing the federation has reduced its losses to about $17,000.

Brickbauer, in a statement presented with the report, said the federation's finances had been strengthened greatly since the "secret survey" made by the Wisconsin College of Agriculture which reported the federation was in a "weak" financial condition. Furthermore, he said, the analysis by the college of agriculture was not "secret" since it was distributed to each of the federation directors who represent cheese factories in the state.

Under the survey the federation's condition as of June 30, 1931, it was pointed out that overpayments were made to factory members in the amount of approximately $32,000.

Involved in the federation's report are 157 foreign type cheese factories and 271 American factories distributed through Wisconsin and a part of Minnesota.

WHO'S NEW IN CONGRESS

Dennis Chavez

Santa Fe, N. Mex.—(AP)— Dennis Chavez, new representative from New Mexico, is a rock-ribbed democrat who has "gone to jail" for his party.

He was an old Spanish-American Republican stronghold of Valencia county to put democratic precepts "challenged" in jail at sunrise and keep them there until the polls closed.

As elections came around, Dennis Chavez sat in jail until the polls closed. Nor were democrats diminished in heart by the republicans the same way in the democratic counties.

The household of David Chavez, Sr., on the expansive ranch, Los Chavez, was one of perfect harmony—except for politics.

Don David, Sr., was prominent in directing affairs of the republican party in state and county. His two sons, Dennis and David, Jr., however, were in open rebellion against the republicans.

The father died true to his party, and now the Chavez family under the General Federation of Women's Clubs is now offering medical and financial aid to the Women's Overseas Service League in assisting disabled women who served overseas during the war.

Music Ought To Be Part Of Education

BY ANGELO PATRI

I think that all children should have music lessons. Some day I hope that music will be a regular subject in all the schools and that all the children will learn to play and sing and read music just as now they read words.

All children are not musicians. That need not hinder them from understanding music and being able to play some instrument, sing some songs, read music. All people are not scholars but that does not hinder us from teaching all the children to read books.

The musical genius, the musician of skill, ought to have a specialized education. His life must be bent to his gift. The ordinary child has no gift and should not be asked to submit to training that can profit him nothing. It is for this child that I ask for music lessons. Let him learn to play an instrument according to his ability. If he grades as first violin fine. Let him have one and go to it in the school orchestra. If he can qualify only for the Jew's harp, fine. Put him in and let him play. No musical instrument from drum to harp and piano is to be scorned.

The less gifted musicians seem to like the trumpet. They like to blow their horns long and loudly. Why not? It is one of the best, and one of the most innocent pleasures a child can have. By all means let him have his music lesson and his horn and praise him for his performance.

Then comes the difficulty about practice. Don't let it be too difficult. Cut it down to its limits. Ten minutes at a time for the reluctant practitioner is enough. It must be honest work, though. The time used in "goeing," finding the music, finding the place, arranging the music, warming the hands, polishing the instrument, are not to count. The time is taken from the first foot. Any student who goes to school, drinks, regulation of ventilation, and the like must be made up with a fresh start. A good humor agreement about this can be reached. Ten minutes of solid work a day will soon mount up, and if he has another ten minutes just before dinner, all to the good.

Don't fret about his practicing. Set a time for it, the same time every day, and let him do it. Keep on reminding him until he gets the habit. If all he can do cheerfully is the ten minutes, let it go at that. His music is not a serious business. It is his pastime, his fun. Don't pay a big price for such lesson. Save the money for his real needs, his bigger gift. The school orchestra will do all that is necessary if he really wants to make a joyful sound. That's about all he is going to do.

The child who has a real musical gift needs very little prodding. Music to him is what dinner is to the healthy young type of the ballfield. What he needs is the best teacher you can procure and a chance to play his instrument. If you have to drive him to practice there is something the matter.

It is a mistake to put music for the usual child on the altar. It is just as ordinary, for him, as bread and butter, the third reader and the monthly report card. Let him make his joyful noise without feeling cramped by rules and regulation, practice time and lesson costs. Cut them down to the minimum and be happy about it.

MITCHELL TALKS AT BANQUET OF FATHERS, SONS

"Three Types of Relationships between Father and Sons" was the subject of the address given by Rexford Mitchell, of Lawrence college, at the Father and Son banquet at the Baptist church Tuesday night. He stated that the three relationships were best characterized by three prepositions, "against," "with," and "without."

The first type was explained as existing between the father and son who work against each other, being entirely out of sympathy and accord, the second type was shown to exist when the two go their own ways, having nothing in common, and the third was set forth as the ideal companionship of father and son, each working to help the other.

M. G. Clark, Scout executive, gave the toast for the fathers, and Philip Johnson responded for the sons.

Wesley Latham was the toastmaster. A male quartet, composed of Merrill Latham, Robert Forer, Fred Teichel, and Walter Brendelick, sang several selections, and Gordon Watts and Robert Meyer gave a piano duet. About 105 persons were present. Group singing was led by W. S. Ryan.

NEW PRICES NEEDED BY FARMERS, CLAIM

Madison—(AP)—A readjustment of prices through revision of tariffs, taxes, bargaining power, and a better adjustment of output to market demands is necessary to aid the farmer, Prof. B. C. Hubbard of the University of Wisconsin told delegates to the Farm and Home week meeting here.

"Since 1920," he said, "the farmer has sold in a cheap market and bought in a dear one. The farmer is very largely on an export basis and Europe has proved a poor place in which to sell. So far as the much wanted home market is concerned, the farmer has clearly and persistently produced a surplus.

"Prices of the goods which the farmer has bought have been bolstered by many and powerful forces. Wages have not come down. Even the widespread unemployment has failed to reduce the scale very much. No people can long stand selling at 70 and buying at 125. The farmer cannot continue to sell wheat at 25 to 50 cents a bushel and pay $200 for a self-binder."

POPE PIUS, 74, MAKES PLANS FOR 2ND BUSY DECADE

Head of Roman Catholic Church Plans Observance of Coronation

BY ANDRUE BERDING

Vatican City—(AP)—Celebrating the tenth anniversary of his coronation, Feb. 12, by attending a mass in St. Peter's, Pope Pius XI is looking forward to another ten years of intense activity.

He is 74 years old, and in his pontificate 47 cardinals have died; but Pius, a hardy mountaineer in his youth and today strong and vigorous, has before him the example of Leo XIII, who died in 1903 at the age of 83.

The pontiff has a definite program for the next decade. It embraces efforts for the reunion of Protestant and Orthodox churches with the Roman Catholic church, as he outlined in his last encyclical; promotion of peace and disarmament, further modernization of the Vatican and expansion of missionary activities.

Building to Continue

Toward the reunion of the churches the pope does not intend to call any meetings or suggest any international conferences. He will content himself with laying down the tenets of the Roman Catholic church and with issuing invitations to the other churches to adopt them.

The Vatican will continue its modernization program. The new library, new art gallery and railroad station will be completed. Rail trainings will run directly into Vatican City and prelates, and pope, will travel to and from the tiny state by this means.

Perhaps the feverish modernization of the Vatican may even bring the establishment of an airfield within the papal city. This would not be usable for any planes except helicopters or autogiros, but the pope has made inquiries about this type of plane with just such an idea in mind.

Pius continues on the throne of St. Peter another ten years he perhaps will outlive all of the cardinals who elected him. Only 25 of them are left.

Practices Hard Routine

The pontiff has wrought a great change in the sacred college by the creation of 32 cardinals, including three of the four Americans—Cardinals Hayes of New York, Dougherty of Philadelphia and Mundelein of Chicago.

His Holiness expects to continue, prelate say, the same hard daily routine of the last decade. He rises at seven, says mass, breakfasts, and then confers with his secretaries and prelates. Toward noon he holds private audiences for important persons, then general audiences for the public.

He lunches at 2:30 p. m., while his secretaries read correspondence to him, takes an hour's walk in the Vatican gardens, then grants audiences until eight.

He says prayers until nine, dines and retires to his private library at ten to study and read, sometimes until early in the morning.

AUST CONTINUES LECTURE SERIES ON LANDSCAPING

Symmetry Necessary in Laying Out Design, He Tells Class

Characteristics and divisions of shrubs and trees which create real beauty around the home were outlined by Prof. Franz A. Aust in the fourth of a series of landscaping lectures at Appleton vocational school auditorium Tuesday evening. Approximately 80 members of the landscape class attended the meeting.

Pointing out the necessity of dynamic symmetry in laying out the design plan, Professor Aust produced many sketches and stereopticon slides to show how various plans can be worked out. In working out the survey plan all objects should be shown accurately located and in their correct proportions and dimensions.

"The front lawn with most American homes is usually accessible to the view of the passing public," Professor Aust said. "The black lawn should have about it a spirit of privacy and seclusion and should be intimately related to the home itself.

"In producing aesthetic features, the lawn is the foreground of the picture, the side lawns and back lawn creating background. Trees are needed to frame the house, and also to serve as a background or to screen some unsightly building. Trees also may be planted to create a better scale to the house. They are valuable in creating more light or shade."

Discussing various species of shrubs, the lecturer said that type of foliage is designed primarily to make the house a part of the grounds, to soften the junction of a strong vertical corner line with a horizontal ground line. He said shrubbery also tends to separate the foreground from the background of the house.

"Boundary plantings give privacy, and bring about a feeling of individuality and a spirit of seclusion," he said. Shrubs also may be used in screen planting to enhance features which might otherwise be ugly."

Illustrating vistas and views with sketches and slides, Professor Aust stated that near views are usually best framed with small trees or shrubs. Distant views, he said, should be framed with material which is in keeping and in scale with the main objects views. Color in bark, texture of foliage are important features to consider in the selection of material for framing the views, he stated.

PLAN 4TH SESSION OF BRIDGE TOURNEY

The fourth round of the 10-session contract bridge tournament sponsored by Appleton Contract Bridge Players' association will be held at 7:30 Thursday evening at the Elk's club. Eight tables will be in play in the competition which will determine champions of the American and National leagues. At the end of the 10 sessions the champions of the two leagues will meet in a match to determine the city championship.

NAMES ANOTHER IN SERIES OF MURDERS

Confessed Hammer Killer Tells Chicago Police He Had Accomplice

Chicago—(AP)—Paul Harrison, 27, confessed hammer killer, was confronted today with police records of more unsolved crimes as the authorities began a search for a Virginia man they said he named as his accomplice in the slaying of Miss Norma Newby, a Chicago woman.

The man sought for questioning was named by Harrison as Joseph Hardy of Cumberland, Va.

Harrison, an auto mechanic, admitted slaying Dr. James Schaffer, an aged dentist, and Earl Davis, a garage watchman, because he had "impulses to kill," the police said, and then blurted out the story of kidnaping Miss Newby from her escort and killing her last March. He confessed, the police said, the crime was committed to get money for Hardy so he could return to his Virginia home.

He also in turn admitted and denied slaying Charles Pagel Jan. 9. The denial came after employees of the hotel in which Pagel was slain failed to identify Harrison. Among the other killings, apparently as motiveless as those Harrison confessed which police, are attempting to link to him, are those of Charles Tyrrell, beaten to death Jan. 13, and Miss Eppie Moss, a member of a prominent family, slain in January, 1931.

THE STORY OF SUE

By Margery Hale

"BUT if you leave home, where will you go?" Mrs. Bradley asked Ruth, as her daughter announced that she wouldn't stay, after the scene that her family had staged. "Our friends wouldn't understand."

"Never mind. I won't trouble any of the family friends. I'll find a room." Ruth's voice was coming in a strained sort of gasp.

"Or go to your outcast friends, the Thomases," she tossed at her. Then, at the darkening of Ruth's brown eyes, she added: "Well, they are. Corinne doesn't invite them any more, and Jack's father put him out of his law firm, didn't he?"

"No," Ruth answered quickly. "Jack withdrew in order to help Sue's father when he was under arrest for something he didn't do. It was splendid of him. And Harry Becker and Nancy and all the rest are standing by them. You are using your imagination, Sally."

"The 1st Sally asked lightly. "Well, I'm sleepy. I'm going to bed. Good night, everyone."

"Yes, I am, too," Mrs. Bradley answered. Then she remembered that Ruth had said that she was going to leave. "You aren't going, of course. That would be an unwise gesture."

"I'm going—now," Ruth answered. She left the room quickly, walked up the softly carpeted steps, head high, so her family couldn't know about the crushing ache in her heart. In her room she started to pack. She got out her bags, laid stacks of underwear inside just as they had been arranged in her bureau drawers. Put in stockings and handkerchiefs. Filled the shoe box with slippers. Her hats were rather shabby. On a strange impulse she threw all but her new one and another crushed black felt into the waste paper basket. A pair of uninteresting brown exfoliated, half-worn, went with them. The maid would find them and see that they were given to someone who could use them. Ruth didn't touch the first dress in the wardrobe. It was drab, too. She didn't want it. Or the second one. The third would do. It had its good points. Not the fourth. By the time she was packed it was late. She picked up a few books that she liked, one etching, a plaque, a red leather box that held some souvenirs. Then she went downstairs and called a taxi.

Everyone else in the house had gone to bed. She had packed quietly in order not to disturb anyone. She knew that her father and mother, even Sally, had thought that she was making a melodramatic threat. Nothing more.

The taxi cab company promised to send for her at once. Ruth put on her coat and hat and gloves. Then she carried first one, then another of her bags downstairs. The third one was too large for her to handle. She would send for that the next day.

When the taxi came she was waiting on the porch. She didn't want her family to hear the commotion. Not until she was in the car, speeding down the road, did she draw a sigh of relief. She was through! She was free! She would make her own way now! A curious elation took the place of the hurt anger that she had felt when she had happened. It hadn't been her fault . . . and it had helped her to get away.

"Where are you going, lady?" the driver called through the speaking tube.

"Going?" She remembered that she had to go some place. She hadn't thought about just where. A hotel, she supposed. But not the one where Sue and Jack were. Nor the one which had sheltered Hal Pritchard. But where?

"Do you know any hotels?" she asked the driver.

with you. And if your husband is devoted to his mother above everyone else in the world, life will be anything but a bright dream for the three of you. You won't be able to stand the strain.

Let your fiancé make his choice now. Either he loves his mother so much that he will give up his life's happiness for her sake, or else he loves you sufficiently to make some compromise with the rest of the family. There is no reason why they should not all help to care for her, and why she should not be happier living independently.

You must stick up for yourself on this point, even though it cost you your marriage—for if you give in, your marriage will be sacrificed in the end. I have heard of mothers-in-law who finally made peace with their son's wives, but seldom have I heard of a case where the two women were able to be friends, when they began by being enemies, and had to live under the same roof, in to the bargain.

Your fiancé will have to decide which is more important to him—you or his mother, and if he decides in favor of you, he must be reasonable enough to make terms with the rest of the family.

WAITING: Your letter has been answered before in this column. It is possible to give you the information you require. This column is not devoted to such matters, and as I have told you before, any information of the sort you receive through me would be highly inaccurate, and consequently quite worthless. If you have any problems with which I am able to deal I should be delighted to help you but in the meantime would suggest that you stop trying to obtain such information through the newspapers.

WE WOMEN
By Virginia Vane

SHOULD MOTHER COME FIRST IN THIS CASE?

Dear Miss Vane: I have been engaged for several years to a man who has three sisters—all of them in good health and at least fairly prosperous. But they feel and he feels that when he marries, his mother must come to live with him. I know that she would be much happier with her daughters than she would with me. I do not get along well with her, do not like her manner, find her irritating, and believe she does not care for me. My fiancé is obdurate. He doesn't think anything is good enough for his mother. She must come first in everything. We are both over thirty years of age, and were to be married this winter. Now he seems to be going to break off the engagement because I will not consent to living with his mother but feel that the others should help with her support. I want to marry and settle down. This has upset me greatly. Can you tell me what to do?

X. Y. Z.

It's a bitter pill to swallow at this late date—to tell the man who loves you is willing to sacrifice you for his mother and his belief in what he considers his duty toward her. But you're wise to oppose him in this matter, since it concerns your life happiness.

Perhaps it would be easier to give in gracefully—to say that for the sake of the man you love, any sacrifice is acceptable. But actually you can't go on being noble forever. You might be able to make a splendid gesture now and announce that you will take his mother to live with you. But your good temper and your splendid resignation wouldn't last long. In the end, you'd bring nothing but discord and inharmonious to all.

If you know definitely that you and his mother are already enemies, you're merely asking for trouble, in inviting her to be a permanent guest.

CREAM AND OIL HANDS TO KEEP THEM LOVELY

BY ALICIA HART

Are your fingers smooth, soft and white?

I know of a young woman with perhaps the most shapely pair of hands I have ever seen. But she recently had a harsh surface along the outer edge of her first fingers on both hands. She didn't know what caused them. The rest of her hands were their usual soft, white, firm selves.

However, she set to work to remedy the defect. She used her little facial brush with tepid soap suds and carefully rubbed and scrubbed the surfaces. Next, she used a piece of fine pumice stone, again not overdoing it but going at it patiently. After this she used warmed olive oil for a few nights, bandaging both fingers with tape, loosely, just to keep the oil on them. After that she used a new hand cream just put on the market this winter and the total effect of all of her care are two perfect fingers again.

For Callouses Too

The ends of some fingers become calloused. Across the mounds of the fingers inside the palm of the hand is another spot for callouses. A person who writes much by hand or sews is apt to have one blemish on the finger that sends out callouses to protect itself. The above treatment is good for them all.

One of the most unsightly stains on a really womanly hand is a brown nicotine stain. Sometimes both the first and second fingers of one had become temporarily blemished by this brown stain. It needs soaking, scrubbing, a good softening with cream and then a bleach. After the bleach use a hand cream. And, if you think you are going to stain them again use a holder for your cigarette!

MY NEIGHBOR Says —

To remove strong game flavor in wild duck, which is not liked by some, soak over night in a quart of water to which four tablespoons of vinegar have been added.

Place a piece of waxed paper under a centerpiece on a table on which a flower bowl is used, to prevent dampness from the bowl marring the surface of the table.

Never rub soap on flannels or woollens. Wash them in soapy water and rinse in lukewarm water if you wish to preserve their softness and fine texture.

To remove dust from upholstered furniture, cover the surface with a large, heavy turkish towel wrung out of water to which a tablespoon of ammonia has been added. Beat with a carpet beater and all dust will adhere to the towel.

To clean artificial fruit and flowers dip them in and out of white soap suds several times. Rinse them by dipping in clear water containing a few drops of ammonia. (Copyright, 1932, The Associated Newspapers)

“EAT MORE TO GET THIN”

An Italian Discovery

Drink Water Before Breakfast and Make One Change in Diet Only to Rip Off Ten Pounds in 10 Days

HERE is sweet music, in scientific tempo, for fat people's ears. "Eat more to grow thin."

Thanks to a unique Italian discovery, thousands of people are doing it. Losing as much as seven pounds a week, and building their health as well.

Here's the way. So if you want to get rid of some bulk, cut this article out and save it. Chances are, in a week, your friends will be wondering what you've been doing to yourself to get rid of the fat they used to tease you about.

What You Do

FIRST: As soon as you get up in the morning, put two tablespoonfuls of sparkling Brioschi Italian effervescent in a half glass of cool water; and drink it down while it is still effervescent. This tends to de-acidify the system before food touches the stomach.

NEXT: Make just one simple change in your diet. Eat DOUBLE the quantity you now eat of certain foods; and cut down on others. Here are the foods to double on; the ones to cut down on.

DOUBLE on these: Carrots, spinach, oranges, cabbage, lettuce, new turnips, white squash, sauerkraut, broccoli, fresh peas, apples, and all green vegetables. See how much of these you can make your stomach hold. Eat also your usual appetite's requirement of any lean meat, beef, veal, chicken, etc., etc.

Cut on these: Eat bran or whole wheat bread instead of white bread or biscuits. For dessert have fresh fruit instead of pastry. Cut down on butter but don't cut it out entirely.

BEFORE BED: Repeat two tablespoonfuls of sparkling Brioschi Italian effervescent in half a glass of water to again de-acidify the stomach. Don't think, either, that this is hard. It makes a really pleasant drink that tastes like lemonade, not like vile-tasting salts. So everything is easy.

The result of this dietary change will be that you'll really have MORE than you want to eat, yet will see fat go in a way you wouldn't have believed. And you'll feel more active than you probably have for years. For the diet that takes off the fat, cut this article out and save it. The de-acidifier you use is called Brioschi Italian effervescent (pronounced Bree-oh-sky). You can get it at any drug store.

CULBERTSON ON CONTRACT

by Ely Culbertson
World's Champion Player and Greatest Card Analyst

DISCARDING WINNERS TO WIN

Sometimes spectacular play is an essential element of success, although more frequently it is a gesture without particular significance. In the hand below, played by Mr. Garnett L. Merriman of Lynchburg, Virginia, his spectacular play furnished the only key to the making of the contract.

Both sides vulnerable.
South—dealer.

The Bidding:
(Figures after bids in table refer to the numbered explanatory paragraphs.)

South	West	North	East
1♠	2♣(1)	Pass	3♥(2)
Pass	3NT(3)	Pass	4♥
Pass	Pass	Pass	Pass

1—The strong honor holding possibly justifies the Overcall, although the suit is only four cards in length.

2—East's Jump Overcall indicates a strong and freakish hand.

3—West's hand contains a stopper in spades and little support for the hearts. However, it gives promise of game in notrump in view of the strong bidding by partner.

In play, South led the diamond Ace and North played the deuce. The leader then studied the situation carefully. He was sure of 2 trump tricks with the major ten ace holding in trumps. It was only necessary to secure 1 more trick to defeat the contract. North had refused to raise his bid. It was possible that he held a Singleton in spades. In any event, a spade lead seemed to offer the only hope of defeat for the contract. To this lead a low card was played from Dummy. North played the five spot and East won with the Queen. He realized that North held a singleton spade and so Mr. Merriman now led the Knave of clubs, overtaking in the Dummy and continuing two more rounds of that suit, upon which he discarded the Ace and four of spades. Danger of a ruff in spades now being averted, the trumps were led and 2 trump tricks conceded to South and the contract made.

Less accurate play must have resulted in defeat.

TODAY'S POINTER

Question: If assisting hand denies trump suit bid by Declarer, how does Declarer revalue his hand?

Answer: He revalues his hand the same as the Assisting Hand if he has trump support for his partner; if he is going to rebid his own suit he simply revalues his trump suit, counting the long trump tricks the same as he would were they in a side suit.

Your Birthday

"AQUARIUS"

If February 4th is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 8:10 a. m. to 9:30 a. m., from noon to 1:40 p. m. and from 9 p. m. to 10:45 p. m. The danger periods are from 6:40 a. m. to 7:45 a. m. and from 4 p. m. to 6 p. m.

The astrological signs show that you should be singularly free from anxiety or any form of misfortune on February 4th. Pleasure, more than work, will be the keynote of the day and your heart will be filled with more good things than your material coffers.

The son or daughter born on this February 4th will have a quiet and reserved nature. It should be a born schemer, with penetrating judgment and keen business insight. It should have a strong vitality, good nerves, emotional control, and an even temper. On the whole it has a promising horoscope.

Nature kindly handed you, if born February 4th, a discontented nature and you have acquired a chronic chip on your shoulder. Never content with the pleasures within your reach, you sigh for the unattainable. Your enthusiasms are too keen to be lasting and soon die a death of boredom. You are always seeking and never finding, some lasting interest in life. You hate obligations of any kind and only invisible strings of love or loyalty can really bind and hold you to anything or person. You are capable of far more affection than you outwardly ever express. You unfortunately never seem to appreciate any of your blessings until they have gone, or been taken from you, and you then berate yourself for having been a blind fool.

Although a trifle slipshod in your methods, you are an easy and a capable worker, and often gain better results than those who are more sticklers for details. You are interested in quick returns, as you lack the patience to wait for draw-out successes. You are enough of a gambler to take a chance, and are not a "safety first" person.

An early marriage would not be advisable and is not indicated— as you will not "settle down" before attaining your more mature years. Worry is indicated through chronic chip on your shoulder.

COUNCIL PUTS OFF DECISION ON SALARIES

Final Vote on City Officials' Pay to Be Taken Next Friday

Menasha—With three out of eight aldermen present opposed to its passage, approval of the city salary ordinance was delayed at a meeting of the common council here Tuesday evening. The meeting was adjourned to Friday evening when definite action must be taken.

The salary ordinance, which, it passed, will become effective on May 1, embodies a few changes from the scale in effect last year, but following a motion for its passage, Aldermen M. J. Small, Charles Grade, and Philip Michalekiewicz voted nay. Aldermen H. J. Schierl and George Sengenbrenner were absent and Mayor N. G. Remmel ruled the motion lost.

The only changes in the new ordinance provide for an increase of $100 per year in the salary of the superintendent of the police; an increase of $100 per year in the salary of the city physician, which, however, will provide remuneration for all operations the physical must perform; and a decrease of $200 per year in the salary of the city attorney. The attorney will be employed in a separate capacity as counsel for the water and light commission, however, a city official explained.

54% FOR MAYOR

The proposed ordinance provides that the mayor shall receive $475 per year, each alderman $200 per year, the city clerk $1,275 per year, the city treasurer, $2,100 per year, the city bookkeeper, $900 per year; the city attorney, $600 per year; the superintendent of the police, $600 per year; the superintendent of streets, $1,920 per year; the sealer of weights and measures, $240 per year; the city physician, $800 per year; the chief of police, $1,500 per year, regular police officers, $1,620 per year, special police, 50 cents per hour; chief of the fire department, $1,800 per year; assistant fire chief, $1,560 per year; regular firemen, $1,500 per year; fire department captain, $120 per year; call firemen, $110 per year, and special firemen, 50 cents an hour.

Against Reduction

Before presentation of the salary ordinance, a recommendation from the fire and police commission, stating that both departments were short-handed and that no reduction in salaries should be made, was read and ordered placed on file.

In addition to the action on the salary ordinance to be taken at the adjourned meeting Friday evening, bids for the purchase of the "teacherette", a city owned structure at Broad and Milwaukee streets will be opened. Mayor N. G. Remmel's announcement of election board appointments also was delayed until Friday session.

New Bids Sought

Bids on the construction of an entrance to Rest Haven cemetery were sought, and opened by the council Feb. 16, it was decided. Plans and specifications have been prepared by city engineer.

Three petitions, one for a sanitary sewer on Appleton street between Eighth and Ninth-sts, another for a street light at the intersection of Appleton and Ninth-sts, and a third in opposition to oil treatment of Sixth-st between DePere and London-sts were received. The sewer petition was referred to the sewer committee, the street light petition to the Fourth ward aldermen, and the street oil treatment matter left for further consideration by the council.

Letter to Mayor

A letter to Mayor N. G. Remmel from J. H. Kuester, superintendent of the Menasha water and light plant relative to the lighting of Nicolet-blvd. and Abbey-ave, was read to the aldermen. The letter revealed that Kuester had been ordered by the city to stop the lighting of the street and recommended that Neenah officials be approached on the question of assuming the responsibility for a just period. The matter was referred to the city attorney and the finance committee.

Book City Aid

The finance committee and city attorney also were ordered to consider the case of an aged and indigent Menasha couple who, in a communication to the council, offered to deed the family residence to the city in return for aid. The damage claim of Mrs. Martha Klein, injured in a fall on a second ward street, was referred to the attorney and finance committee for investigation.

Plans of Wisconsin-Michigan

Power company to provide bus service for island residents in Menasha were revealed by Mayor Remmel. Service across Mill-st to Nicolet-blvd. via Keyes and Cleveland-sts is planned but cannot be started until proper legal procedure is taken, Mayor Remmel explained. A meeting with Menasha officials was held at the city offices last week.

The January report of John Sengenbrenner, superintendent of the water and light plant, revealed that aid totaling $1,200.00 was extended during the month, $1,211.06 of which was classified as city aid. The annual financial report of the public library was read, and the quarterly report of the city sealer of weights and measures was accepted.

"God Punishing Allies"—Kaiser

Down A.I. 32

Liniment compliments a movement administration for your brilliant Germany that "Gott mit uns" in which you did not B. Schmidt a suffering blow. There is not the slightest doubt about who were the real culprits that started the World War. They stood arraigned before the Tribunal of History awaiting their verdict. The "World Crisis" the Allies are also suffering from, is the punishment Providence is meting out to them for their crimes in 1914 and Versailles 1919!

William

Declaring that Providence is punishing the allies "for their crimes in 1914 and 1918," former Kaiser Wilhelm of Germany reaffirmed his contention that Germany was not responsible for the World War in a letter to Professor M. H. Cochran of Missouri University, Columbia, Mo. In the note, shown here with a late picture of the former ruler, he says, "There is not the slightest doubt about who were the real culprits that started the World War. They stood arraigned before the Tribunal of History, awaiting their verdict. The 'World Crisis' the Allies are also suffering from, is the punishment Providence is meting out to them for their crimes in 1914 and at Versailles in 1918." The letter was one commending Professor Cochran on his book, "Germany Not Guilty in 1914." Notice that the ex-kaiser spells it "meeting out" and that he apparently believes the Versailles conference was held in 1918, instead of 1919.

Defeat Kaukauna 25 to 18 to Remain in First Place Tie in League

Showing considerable improvement over their early season games, the Kaukauna cagers presented stiff opposition throughout the battle, but were unable to combat the effectiveness of the Menasha forward wall composed of Veyenbergs, Rather, and Remmel. New York—Wherever he goes, Nelson T. Johnson carries a copy of "Alice in Wonderland." The American minister to China, now on his way to Shanghai, with 25 years experience in far eastern diplomacy, finds in this beloved fantasy a mysterious open sesame to the labyrinthine chambers of the oriental mind—a maze which the white rabbit might have traversed. Not that this is his diplomatic manual. It is merely a sort of "White Book" of secret understanding between him and the Chinese, whom he loves.

There's nothing Peter Panish, or even puckish about Mr. Johnson. He addresses the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce on the far eastern stogie market in the resounding and forthright manner which the occasion demands. But there is a duality of mind in Mr. Johnson which, with due regard to the danger of superlatives, appears to have enabled him to penetrate farther into the affections of the Chinese than any other American diplomat. He speaks Chinese perfectly and he is the one man who has succeeded in translating American humor to the Orient.

"Boys did I ever tell you the one about the old farmer and the summer boarder?" Such is the preface to any particular set of agenda which he may have to lay before Chinese officials of state. They always get the point, he says, and he adds that the Chinese have a rich sense of humor.

Born in Washington 44 years ago, Mr. Johnson spent some time in the southwest where, in picking up Indian dialects, he discovered his linguistic gifts. In 1906, he went to China as a student interpreter. He knew Latin and Greek and Chinese was easy. In his succeeding years in the consular service, the Chinese were delighted with his mastery of even the most elusive idiom. In 1927, he was made assistant secretary of state and in 1929 Mr. Hoover appointed him minister to China. Along with "Alice in Wonderland," he packs around the "Analects" of Confucius. These two books and a suitcase comprise his baggage.

No Oliver Wendell Holmes has written a deathless poem to save "Old Rubbersides," the dirigible Los Angeles, now on the auction block. Howard Hughes, cyclonic young Texas millionaire, is bidding for it, to add it to the stable of aircraft which he uses in making motion pictures. He funneled $4,000,000 into "Hell's Angels," more than half of which was spent for the rental of flying machines. He is in the unique position of trying to cut down overhead by building it up.

When he was 20 his father bequeathed him the Hughes tool works of Houston. He made a success of the business, but it bored him. Now, at 26, the tall, gangling young man with the tousled hair and the lamp black mustache counts real millions made in producing moving pictures.

In 1930, he concluded a $10,000 deal with Joseph M. Schenck. He needs of whole flock of dirigibles in his business.

Bainbridge Colby, New York lawyer and secretary of state in the Wilson administration, is today ordered at Washington for the democratic nomination for the presidency. He was born in St. Louis, in 1869 and has practiced law in New York city for 40 years. He is for the league of nations, and against prohibition and debt cancellation. He started as a republican, became a bull mooser, then a Wilson democrat and is now just an ordinary democrat.

In addition to prohibition, Mr. Colby dislikes gangsters, a litter in public parks. He was Mark Twain's lawyer and pulled Mr. Clemens' affairs out of a bad tangle. As a republican, he helped put Seth Low, reform mayor, in office. He served in the state legislature in 1901 and he backed Mayor Walker, but is now stringing with the Seabury investigation.

ADDRESSES SOUGHT

Neenah—Twin city reserve officers have been requested to notify corps area headquarters of addresses and telephone numbers through which they could be reached in case of emergency. The action of the corps area headquarters is presumably prompted by the far eastern situation, it is said.

WILL PLAY RECITAL

Neenah—Emily Owen, organist at St. Thomas Episcopal church, will give a recital at 7:30 Sunday evening at First Methodist church at Oshkosh. A large number of Neenah persons plan to attend.

MEETING POSTPONED

Neenah—The Saturday night meeting of Boys Brigade groups will not be held this week owing to the high school basketball game between Neenah and Kaukauna. Friday night groups will meet as usual to study oil painting. Henry Jung will be in charge of the classes.

an unsuccessful beer hall putsch—the same Adolf Hitler is the hero a million people worship; the threat that Europe feared; the man who has become Reichschancellor; and whether Hitler becomes Reichschancellor or remains the leader of the largest German party, this era of German defiance will bear his name.

In the Hitler era our American investment of $3,000,000,000 in Germany has ceased to be a mere financial problem. It has become a time factor in the politics of Europe. The American business man asks: "What will happen if Hitler comes to power?" Our state department is no less interested. Until today Hitler has never expressed himself fully and specifically. On the precise theme of "what have American interests in Germany to expect if I take over the government?"

Yesterday for an hour and a half Hitler harangued the 8,000 in the Circus Krone. He was addressing Germany. Today for another hour and a half Hitler, in an interview with the New York Evening Post, analyzed his attitude toward America and toward American investments in this country. He was addressing the United States.

Under the death mask of Frederick the Great, whom Oswald Spengler called "the first National Socialist," Herr Hitler sat and developed a program that may give the German people and our state department food for reflection. The first course was palatable.

Hitler a Courteous Host
"American capital investment in Germany will be safer under a National Socialist regime than under any other government," Hitler declared. "For four reasons: First, because only under a National Socialist government will Germany be freed from political debts, which to-day make it impossible for us to meet our private obligations. Second, because only under a National Socialist government will it be possible to reach a stable relationship with France. Third, because under a National Socialist government Germany will refuse to enter into any agreements that she cannot fulfill. Fourth, because only under a National Socialist government can communism in Germany be avoided."

Hitler was a courteous host. He had personally adjusted his visitor's chair. He smiled engagingly. Dressed in a black broadcloth suit, a white shirt, a semi-floppy collar and black cravat. Hitler looked like an actor or an artist. Or he might have been a rising young district attorney in one of our Southern states, with his eyes on the governorship. His heavy mane of coal black hair would fit that part. More than anything else his hair, full as a youth's, worn slightly long and sleekly combed, distinguished him from the mass of Germans who are either bald or crop their hair to artificial baldness. His thick, close-set narrow nose, his heavy-lidded eyes, his thin lips, the characteristic that gives his features in repose an air of melancholy. His ruddy face and the clear whites of his bright wide-open eyes betokened health. He had just been off to Berchtesgaden, and was full of mountain air and confidence.

"We are determined," he exclaimed, "to repay the last cent of capital we have borrowed from you. The will to pay our private debts is equally strong and unshakable among all Germans, with the sole exception of our Bolsheviks."

Capital Debt Will Be Repaid
"But in considering the question of repayment of our debt to America we must make sharp differentiation between the capital of that debt, the interest on it and the amortization of it. I assure you that nobody shall touch the capital. Every penny of it will be repaid. But the question of how it will be repaid is one that depends upon our attitude toward the world. These loans were forced upon Germany by the existence of reparations. The necessity of paying our political debts forced us to assume these private obligations. We borrowed money to pay reparations. Thus it is true that at least 75 per cent of the loans are in the form of postponed reparations. That was the great danger that lay in our taking these foreign loans. The transaction amounted to commercialization of reparations."

Hitler began to talk slowly and conversationally, looking at his visitor. After a moment the speed of his delivery increased, his voice rose to platform pitch, he leaned forward in his chair, gestured freely, directed his gaze on space and addressed an audience. A question broke the spell. His eloquent hands rested and his engaging smile reappeared.

"If you repudiate reparations and you consider private debts to be a concealed and postponed form of payment of reparations, why do you recognize private debts?"

"We recognize private debts despite all these considerations because we intend in the future to continue to maintain international relationships. Unless we were ready to break off all contact with the outer world, unless we were ready to adopt the Bolshevik principles of repudiating private property, we are compelled and we are determined to recognize and pay our private obligations."

"But the interest on these loans was established at a level determined by the circumstances under which the loans were made. This means that Germany took these loans in an attempt to fulfill impossible terms of reparations. Under this pressure we contracted loans at interest rates that were exorbitant. It is plain to everybody now that these rates are no longer economically tolerable."

"Therefore, it is to the interest of creditor nations as much as to the interest of the debtor that some new arrangement should be made by which interest rates and amortization payments be reduced to a level we can fulfill."

We Will Call Creditors Together
"Do not understand by this that we intend by Government decree to reduce interest rates on foreign loans. We intend to do nothing with respect to our foreign private obligations except in agreement with our an attack that will jeopardize the entire American investments in Germany. For you can be sure of one thing, that if the French make any such attempt to obtain reparations by assaulting Germany, you will have to write three large crosses after your entire investment here.

"The German economic system hangs by a silk thread. If you add a French saber to it, it will come down with a crash."

"What would you expect America to do in case France were to make any such attempt?" I asked.

"I hold and expect that America would seek by every means at her disposal to protect her investments."

Hitler talked rapidly. "I should expect that America would take not only theoretical but practical measures to protect these interests. I should expect, on the one hand, that America, from purely economic reasons alone, would bring every pressure to bear to prevent a development that would destroy her capital investments in Germany. On the other hand I should expect that from political reasons having to do with the balance of power, England and Italy would bring similar pressure to bear."

"I should expect that the United States would finally realize that the continued existence of a treaty such as that of Versailles, which could permit such a development to take place fourteen years after the war, must be destructive to the interest of America and that this treaty must finally be amended."

"But America did not sign the Versailles Treaty," I ventured.

"That does not make any difference," Hitler retorted. "America's refusal to sign the Versailles Treaty does not relieve her of the responsibility that is hers for the conclusion of the war. I was a soldier in the war, and it was my conviction that without American participation on the side of the Allies we would surely have won the war. But whether we had won or not, it was a mistake for America to have entered the war."

Would Have Been Better Off
"If she had not entered the war, she would have been in the position as a powerful neutral nation to have virtually dictated the terms of peace much more than she was able to do as a participant. The world as a whole and America, too, would have been much better off. Nearly every great war except the last one was settled by the intervention of a neutral power. Not the one between Rome and Carthage," he interpolated meditatively, "but now that America did enter the war and was responsible for its outcome, it is not only the moral duty of America to participate in the long postponed settlement, it is her duty as a practical necessity. Let the French come into Germany. If the full weight of the United States were thrown into the balance, Paris could not hold out. She would not dare to continue any attempt at a forcible collection of tribute. And once France were out again, the conference that would ensue would finally bring a stable peace to Europe."

"Do you then consider a Franco-German understanding as possible?" I asked.

"I consider it possible under two conditions," Hitler spoke more energetically. "The first is that the National Socialist Government of Germany shall replace the Government of France as learned is her willing tool and that this Government shall reestablish in Germany the honor and dignity of this country. The second condition is that France shall cease to consider us a second-class nation. As long as Parisians choose to see us as Boches, no understanding between the two nations is possible."

"The French," he exclaimed, "it is true are afraid. There was a time when Napoleon stood in Berlin and yet Germany rose again. But the present France is not the Germany of Napoleon, and the present Germany is not the Germany of Jena and Austerlitz; 1932 is not 1806.

"Yes, the French are afraid, but what are they afraid of? They have taken from us everything possible for them to take. Our war fleet, our merchant fleet, our colonies, our goods, our territories, our lands, our chattels—everything. The only thing they could not take was our 65,000,000 people."

"If it is the French fear of Germany that until now has been chiefly responsible for the failure of the two nations to reach an understanding, do you consider it probable that this French fear will become any less if you take over the Government?" I asked.

Must Give Up Ideas Of Violence
Hitler thought a moment. "I submit," he replied, "that the only possibility of achieving a stable relationship with France is when the National Socialist Government of Germany makes it plain to the French that they must finally, once and for all, give up even the phantasm, even the remote dream, that some of them still have, that it is possible by force, by violence, by assault, to bring anything more from Germany."

"When they have given up this psychopathic mentality of the victor, when they have abandoned their idea of justice, then and only then will it be possible for the two nations to treat with each other. I still hope that there are, after all, enough intelligent Frenchmen left to realize that it is an insane dream to imagine that they can destroy Germany. When this dream has disappeared the first condition for the re-establishment of stable relations in Europe will have been fulfilled."

Hitler, speaking on the topic of France, was a different Hitler. There was no trace of the bourgeois that many have believed is the man who will become the ruler of the two nations to treat with each other. I still hope that there are, after all, enough intelligent Frenchmen left to realize that it is an insane dream to imagine that they can destroy Germany. When this dream has disappeared the first condition for the re-establishment of stable relations in Europe will have been fulfilled."

"Do you consider," I asked, "that it is necessary of the United States to release France from her debt to America before France releases Germany from her reparations?"

"On the contrary," Hitler responded, "I would consider such a procedure highly objectionable. The consequence would be that France would say 'Now that we have got rid of our debt to America, we shall perhaps cancel the reparations, but not before we have squeezed further political concessions from Germany.' The French would be able, in this case, to attempt further political concessions from Germany with results that would be had for everybody. If, on the other hand, under the National Socialist government, Germany repudiates the reparations, this leaves France with the necessity of taking the initiative for the regulation of her debts to America."

For reasons that are by no means identical, Hitler's position on this highly important feature of America's relationships with Europe appears very similar to that of the Administration at Washington.

I asked Hitler about the editorial attacks in the National Socialist press on the American Woolworth stores numerous in many German cities.

Encourages Bolshevism
"We shall not let German-American relationships depend upon department stores," countered Hitler with a flash of humor. "But seriously, the existence of such undertakings is an encouragement for Bolshevism. They represent a concentration of capital that Marx has taught is the condition for the coming of Communism. They destroy many small existences. Therefore we shall not approve of them, and be assured that your undertakings of this character will be treated precisely as are similar German undertakings."

"But your party program specifically declares that all foreigners in Germany shall be placed under special alien legislation," I queried.

"Yes," he replied, "but that does not mean that foreign property in Germany would be placed under alien laws. On the contrary, I assure you that foreign investments and foreign undertakings in Germany will enjoy the full protection under German laws on a basis of a treaty existent and to be promulgated between Germany and the several nations. Certainly no measures will be taken against any American concern that would not be taken against similar German concerns."

"I cite the example of the Opel works at Rueselsheim, owned by General Motors. We consider it much more advantageous for such a concern to manufacture its automobiles here than to import them, for by manufacturing them here German workers gain employment and German materials come into current industry and trade. The department store question is quite another thing."

From interrelated debts to department stores we had touched on nearly all questions bearing upon the interest of America in Germany. We stood by a buffet of Benoit Mussolini, I asked Hitler if he knew the Italian leader.

"I've never met him," was the reply. Hitler smiled a cordial farewell. We went out past a private electric elevator that connects Hitler's second floor reception office with his private workshop on the third floor.

What Hitler had promised was that American capital in Germany would be safe. What he had said in prospect was that the National Socialist government would insist upon the reduction of the interest rate and an extension of the amortization terms on foreign loans.

Some American undertakings, such as retail stores, appear to face hard times if Hitler comes into power. Others may be allowed to continue in business. But what Hitler had to say of most importance could be analyzed into a paradox: first, it was a crime for Germany to have borrowed money from abroad, because it only meant she converted reparations into private debts. Second, however, it was a very good thing for Germany that she did borrow the money, because America's interest in Germany now makes it possible for Germany to hope that the French will not attempt to collect reparations by force.

Divided Into Two Camps
It happens that the National Socialist Party is divided into two camps on lines along these two self-contradictory attitudes toward private debts. Those in the first camp, not only believe that private debts are another form of reparations, but believe that private debts should be repudiated like the reparations. Hitler adheres with equal firmness to the classification of private debts as

EINSTEIN'S NEWEST THEORY EXPLAINED BY NOTED PHYSICIST

Californian Discusses Aims and Background of German's Studies

(The Associated Press asked Dr. Paul S. Epstein, a theoretical physicist at the California Institute of Technology and co-worker of Dr. Albert Einstein, to outline in non-technical language the scientific investigations to which the distinguished German theorist and mathematician is now devoting himself. Dr. Epstein here discloses how Dr. Einstein was drawn away from the generally accepted idea that a straight line is the shortest between two points.)

BY DR. PAUL S. EINSTEIN
Pasadena, Calif.—(AP)—Dr. Albert E. Einstein's newest unified field theory forms a constant extension and amplification of his earlier work on the theory of gravitation.

Its aims is to find the properties of the space and time in which we live. It was assumed before Einstein started his work that these properties are described by Euclidean geometry and Newtonian mechanics. The shortest distance between two points is, according to Euclid, a straight line; and a body which is set in motion and left to itself moves according to Newton, in a straight line. However, there were known other systems of geometry than the Euclidean. In fact, mathematicians had found a great variety of them but regarded them merely as scientific curiosities.

In these geometries a straight line cannot be defined. The shortest distance between two points is a curved line which is called the "geodesic." Therefore, spaces described by such non-Euclidean geometries are known as "curved spaces."

Einstein's Query
Einstein now put the question: "Is the physical space in which we live really Euclidean, or is it possible to account for the phenomena of gravitation by a suitable chosen non-Euclidean geometry?"

His idea is that every motion of a body is a free motion but, since the space is curved, the body follows not a straight line but the geodesic curve. In Newton's theory this is explained by the deflection through gravitational forces. According to Einstein, the gravitation is simply a geometrical property of the space, or rather of the "space-time."

Einstein succeeded in constructing the suitable kind of geometry; his theory of gravitation received its final form in 1916. It explained all known phenomena and predicted a few unknown facts which were since confirmed by experiment.

However, in addition to gravitational forces, there exist in nature electro-magnetic actions which also can deflect the motion of a body from a straight line. For many years Einstein was searching for a generalized type of geometry of the space-time which would permit to include the electro-magnetic forces into its geometrical properties. Such a theory makes the gravitational and electric actions into one system and is, therefore, called the "Unified Field theory."

Einstein's quest for the final form of the theory uses the method of

DEATH ENDS CAREER OF REPORTER AFTER 61 YEARS' SERVICE

Ottawa, Kas.—(AP)—A newspaper career begun 61 years ago was terminated here Monday in the death of Ellis M. Clarke, 83-year-old columnist and reporter for the Ottawa Herald.

Clarke was said to have been the oldest newspaperman in the state in point of service. Death was caused by postaplectic pneumonia.

To fellow Ottavians he was known as "Uncle Ellis." He could never be induced to use a typewriter. Instead, he preferred his paper pad, and pencil, and used his knees for a desk. His first newspaper experience was at Duluth, Minn. Later he joined the staff of the St. Paul Dispatch. As a reporter he came in contact with some of the early day railroad disputes and once spent two weeks with a posse which was seeking the James gang after the Northfield, Minn., bank robbery.

His widow and nine children survive.

The women's program will be in charge of a home economics worker who will conduct a cooking school in the gymnasium of the high school. The committee is arranging to serve a free lunch at noon.

In the afternoon moving pictures will be shown.

successive approximations. He gradually improves the form of the theory so that every new formulation is better than the preceding one.

Whether this year's formulation is the final form remains to be seen. A statement which appeared in the press that his newest theory uses a five dimensional space is not entirely correct. He stays in the four dimensional space-time but he invents for it a new geometry having the flexibility and richness approaching a five dimensional continuum.

HALF OF STATE'S FAMILIES HAVE NO CHILDREN UNDER 10

Less Than 10 Per Cent of Families Report Three or More Children

(Post-Crescent Washington Bureau)

Washington—More than half of the families of Wisconsin had no children under ten years of age when the last census was taken, according to a census bureau report made public today.

Of the state's 711,859 families, 419,555 or 58.9 per cent reported no children under ten years of age and less than 10 per cent reported three or more young children.

Though Wisconsin farm families run larger than families in Badger towns, the typical country family not living on a farm was smallest of all. The modern size of the urban families was 3.33, as against 3.10 for farm-nonfarm families and 4.13 for farm families. For the state as a whole, the median family was 3.46.

Foreign-born white families in Wisconsin are larger than native whites, as revealed by the 3.46 median family for native whites as against the 3.52 median for foreign-born whites but Negro families in Wisconsin were smaller than either native white or foreign white families, reporting only 2.52 persons in the median negro family.

Nearly 7 per cent of the families in the state consisted of only one person, however, and 158,832 or 22.3 per cent of the families comprised only two persons. In 140,999 or more than half of the Badger families, only one member was a wage earner but 147,049 or 20.7 per cent of the families reported two wage earners. About 10 per cent of Wisconsin families take in boarders, the report showed. Of the 72,938 families in the state reporting lodgers, 51,014 reported only 1 lodger 12,053 reported two lodgers, and 9,259 reported three or more lodgers.

CAR SOUGHT FOR NIGHT POLICE IN NEW LODNON

Communication from Police Chief Placed on File by Council

Special to Post-Crescent
New London—At the meeting of the New London city council Tuesday evening a report was made by Harry Macklin, chief of police, who asked that a protecting car be placed in front of the jail cells so that more privacy would be insured prisoners. Due to several outlying business places being burglarized during the last year Mr. Macklin also requested the purchase of a car for the use of the night police who could answer emergency calls and leave the business district for short intervals.

Chief Macklin's report was placed on file. Some discussion arose as to erecting a partition in the council chamber so that two small rooms would be available. One would be for use of the poor commissioner and the other by the police chief. This remained unsettled.

Communication was read by the commissioner which requested that the city consider the possibility of erecting a water main which would give residents on the cemetery road water and fire protection and would supply water to the cemetery. As the total of this would be approximately $4,000 no action was taken, but the report was given to the finance committee for action.

Whereas this idea said that the labor could be used from those now receiving poor aid. Whether taxpayers will receive a further extension of real estate taxes will be decided at the next meeting. It is probable, however, that this will only be granted to those out of employment and who are otherwise unable to pay.

Special to Post-Crescent

"Oh, in that case," interjected Mrs. Freeman, "we cannot allow you poor aid." HOSTETTLER RETURNS TO HERD ASSOCIATION

(Special to Post-Crescent)
Stockbridge—A banquet was held at Manitowish this week to welcome George Gene Hostettler, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Hostettler of Stockbridge back into the association of the Manitowish-Valley Dairy Herd Improvement association with which he has been employed for the past four years. Professor E. T. Harris of the college of agriculture of Madison was the principal speaker. Members of the broadcasting station at Manitowish furnished part of the music and entertainment.

The success of the organization is largely attributed to Mr. Hostettler's efficient cooperation in the four years of service, he has given the association.

Weyauwega—George T. Classon, was renominated for the postmaster-ship Monday, when President Hoover sent his name to the senate for confirmation.

"White pine rust, a disease as deadly as fire, can only be controlled by grubbing out gooseberry and cur-rant bushes growing within 900-ft of white pine trees," E. W. Atkins, who is making a survey of Wau-paca-co told Lions at their weekly dinner Monday evening at Hotel Marl-yon.

Mr. Atkins is studying the diseas-ed condition of white pines in Wau-paca-co under the joint efforts of the state and national departments of agriculture and the state con-servation department to control the spread of the disease. The survey will be followed by plowing in the spring of the infected territories by members of the agricultural depart-ment.

"While currant and gooseberry bushes have been in Waupaca-co for many years," Mr. Atkins said, "they did not harm until someone unknow-ingly brought a diseased white pine into Wisconsin."

"Every spring orange colored blisters form on the infected parts of white pine and when these blis-ters burst the 'seeds' are blown in the wind and have been found to grow only on currant and gooseber-ry bushes. The disease spreads the summer on the leaves of the bushes and then in the fall produce another crop of 'seeds' which is again blown by the wind, coming in contact with the needles of the white pine."

"As the disease grows into the needles it spreads down into the bark of the tree, feeding on the sap under the bark until the tree tissues have been destroyed. Fortunately, the 'seeds' of this disease can travel only for a short distance and if there are no gooseberry or currant bushes within 900-ft, no harm will be caused," Mr. Atkins declared.

DEMOCRATS TO MAKE REAL BID FOR NEW POWER

Fond du Lac Conference Results in Speculation at Madison

BY JOHN E. ROHAN
(Special To The Post-Crescent)

Madison — The success of the Democratic conference at Fond du Lac has given rise to a great deal of speculation in Madison political circles concerning the ambitions of the Democratic party in the next campaign.

At the outset, let it be said that the attendance at the convention was the largest of any Democratic conference held in years, and its size, enthusiasm and orderliness surpassed even the most extravagant predictions of party leaders. To assure Madison politicians it is a sign that the party is gaining strength in Wisconsin and is very evident that the Democratic vote will be a determining factor in the elections this fall.

The conference has had several varying effects. In the first place, the accusations and attacks that have been leveled against the party by the press and the opposition have been silenced. The party has shown that it is willing to back them to the limit, but that the party expects them to play an independent role in the legislature in the future. The only factor to govern their votes is the welfare of the state. In this special session the Democratic party did not introduce its own relief program because it was believed that the Republican party is entirely in control would rise to the occasion and that an adequate relief bill would be speedily passed. However, politics entered into the work of the session and as the days wore on it became evident to the Democrats that an independent relief program should have been offered. At any rate the Democratic members of the legislature realize that little benefit can be gained either for the state or Wisconsin unless the Democratic party by means of taking sides in the Republican parties' legislative fight.

Move Questioned

A second angle which the convention emphasized was the endorsement of Gov. Franklin Roosevelt as the Democratic candidate for president. While reports are that the conference was almost unanimous in the endorsement of the candidacy of Roosevelt your correspondent knows that there were many who believed that the endorsement of Roosevelt was not a wise political step at this time. It is true that a political organization can best be developed around a particular candidate but it is also true that it is too early to pledge delegates or confer on any candidate, because any number of incidents may occur between now and the time of the convention in June which might entirely alter the national Democratic outlook. The hints of certain newspapers that all is not well between Roosevelt and Alfred Smith should be food for thought. Many will recall that political strategists stated that if the last presidential election had been two weeks earlier Smith would have been elected. In other words the high tide of Smith's candidacy was reached about two weeks before the vote actually took place, and that from then on the pendulum of public opinion swung toward Hoover. The same thing may happen in the case of Roosevelt. He seems most popular at present, but the advent of Gardner, Ritchie and others may mean booms in other directions which may easily equal the present Roosevelt boom, and to many it did not seem wise to have either delegates of conferences pledged to any candidate until his strength had been tested. Those who opposed the endorsement of Roosevelt are not against his candidacy. They did believe however that it was too early to take a rigid position which in the light of possible developments might have to be changed.

The conference at Fond du Lac was important in at least one other respect. It proved conclusively that there is still a division of authority within the party. The squabble is an old one between John M. Callahan of Milwaukee, the National Committeeman, and the State Central Committee headed by Otto A. LaBuddé. Ordinarily the National Committeeman and the State Central Committee work in harmony, but that has seldom been true of Wisconsin Democrats. Just when victory seemed within grasp the Democrats could always be found quarreling among themselves and the result has been inevitable.

That John M. Callahan has seen to it to ignore the Fond du Lac conference is not highly significant. It is rather to be expected. It is to be construed, however, as a challenge to the thousands of Democrats who attended this convention bringing their ridiculous squabble to an end at any cost.

Another fact which the convention at Fond du Lac seemed to emphasize was that a great many younger men are entering the party and are beginning to play an active part in its progress. Younger men are beginning to realize that it is much easier to win recognition in the Democratic party. There are fewer bosses, fewer whips, and the result is the possibility of exercising freedom of political thought and action. It was the sense of the convention at Fond du Lac that the Democrats would be more active and more powerful than ever before. They believe that the voters realize that no party has the sole control of prosperity and that some parties may actually be a lion on it. As one speaker said, "As long as the Republican claims they have the key to prosperity when times are good, they should at least have the good grace to accept the responsibility for the depression when times are bad."

Wisconsin Democrats, with this idea in mind will have a full slate of candidates in the field and they will make a definite bid for political control both in the State and national elections this fall.

CONTAGIOUS CASES DECREASE LAST WEEK

The number of cases of contagious disease in the city last week dropped to three, according to Theodore Sanders, deputy health officer. The week ago health officers began to be worried about the number of cases of chicken pox that were bobbing up, but last week only one new one developed. The list also includes one case of whooping cough and one of scarlet fever, the latter only a suspect.

COMMITTEE URGES NO EXTRAVAGANCE IN COACHING COST

Wants University to Conform Closely to Conference Regulations

Madison — (P) — Recommendation that the University of Wisconsin "should not return to extravagance of coaching" was contained in the report of the special faculty committee of the University of Wisconsin investigating the athletic situation at the school.

The recommendations for university action follow:

"(1) The University of Wisconsin should conform, with scrupulous care, to the regulations of the conference, and should strictly avoid all such practices of subsidizing and recruiting as have, in the past, led to criticism of this University (Carnegie Foundation Report of the Committee on Athletics, Bulletin 23, pp. 223, 226, 229, 245, 246.)

"(2) This university should not compete with any member of the conference which is known to be violating the letter or the spirit of the conference regulations.

"(3) This university should, under no circumstances compete with teams of a recognized semi-professional character.

"(4) This university should not return, when economic circumstances improve, to the extravagant expenditure of coaching and executive staff which is now understood to be in the process of curtailment.

"(5) Inter-regional athletic contests which require the absence of competing students from the University class room exercises for considerable periods should be scheduled only as rare exceptions and only upon the express content of the faculty. Furthermore this university should not contribute to that development of inter-regional games which result from commercialism, a desire to advertise or an unhealthy emphasis upon the national championships.

"(6) The Athletic Council shall make a careful examination of the following problems concerning basketball and report their conclusions to the faculty:—The length of the season, practice and playing season, and the number of games that should be played in a single season; the restoration of the time of beginning games, at least on school nights to the former hour of 7:30; the allocation of space in the old gymnasium and the field house to basketball in relation to the space allotted to other sports.

"(7) This university should, during times of financial retrenchment, reduce or eliminate those non-profit and expensive sports such as crew, which students are likely to be able to continue after graduation.

"(8) Since the fundamental purpose of this University is the development of its students in intellectual ability, physical vigor, and character, the Athletic Council shall engage and retain as coaches only such men as accept this principle in its completeness and are willing to place the welfare of their students and considerations of honesty and sportsmanship above the desire to win.

"(10) Since the control of athletics, as with all other matters affecting the academic work of the students, is vested in the faculty of this University, subject to the authority of the Regents, the Athletic Council shall engage and retain as coaches only such men as are willing to work in harmony with the principle of faculty control."

STATE HAS LARGEST NUMBER OF MILK COWS

Madison — (P) — Wisconsin added 3 per cent more milk cows to its farms during 1931 to assure itself of the leading position among dairy states with a total of 2,150,000 head, Walter H. Ebling, statistician for the United States and Wisconsin Departments of Agriculture, reported today.

With 70 milk cows for every 100 inhabitants, Wisconsin now has more of these animals than ever recorded by any one state, the department said. The average state has 20 cows per 100 inhabitants. Wisconsin leads Minnesota, the second ranking state, with 26 per cent more milk cows, and New York, once the leading dairy state, by 52 per cent.

While Wisconsin was increasing the number of its cows, the price per head dropped off, the department stated. At the beginning of this year, Wisconsin milk cows were quoted at

Would Make National Park Of Everglades In Florida

BY BERT CLAFLIN

Here is something that should be of interest to everyone who is in sympathy with the big outdoors and its inhabitants.

Approved by the senate on Jan. 18, the plea to establish a national park in the Everglades of Florida, the only tropical section in the United States, famed for its weird jungle beauty, interlacing waters, mangrove, rubber and palm trees, and unusual wild life, now awaits only the approval of the house before title is acquired to hundreds of square miles for administration by the National Park Service.

Placing this unique area in the hands of the department of the interior will not only preserve and make available to the public the most unusual virgin scenery in the country but will assure the protection for all time of the last stand of such birds as the ibis, snowy egret, flamingoes and great blue herons, points out a bulletin of the American Game association. Efforts to save and restore the egrets, prized by poachers for their beautiful plumage, has been a romantic and deadly struggle for many years, around which have woven tales of lonely combat.

In a brief debate before the senate it was shown that establishing a park will cost the federal government nothing. With its approval by congress title will be taken by public and private donation and turned over to the government. Future administration of the area as a national park will probably cost less than any other park because of its easy access by boat instead of roads. The National Park Service and the secretary of the interior have approved the plan of making a park out of this great area.

The area designated in the senate measure, sponsored by Senator Fletcher of Florida, covers 2,000 square miles in Dade, Monroe and Collier counties in the extreme south-east part of Florida. The actual park boundaries, not yet selected, will fall within this area.

Unlike the present national parks, most of which are in mountainous territory, the Everglades park may be visited the year round.

Acts such as setting aside areas of land of the nature of the Everglades for wild life sanctuaries, as a rule, commendable. But too often they are recommended blindly and approved before proper advance investigation has been made. There is one thing about the Everglades park for wild life that does not sound just right. They are making provisions to perpetuate the Blue heron, while other states do not protect them; it all in fact, they urge their destruction at all times because of their propensity for life. The egret and the flamingo should be protected. They do not migrate as the heron does, and they will find ample sustenance on the park area, but when spring comes the deadly blue heron will wing its way northward to haunt our already badly depleted trout streams.

PROTEST BOOST IN PRICES OF CAR INSURANCE

Casualty Underwriters Face Difficult Problem in Settling Matter

BY ROLLIN M. CLARK
Copyright, 1932, by Cons. Press

Washington — (CFA) — Widespread opposition to the increased automobile liability insurance rates recently announced for 5 states is being voiced in various parts of the country, following detailed study of the new schedules. With additional protests coming in every day, the situation is not encouraging to casualty underwriters, who look upon the higher rates as a possible way of balancing losses with income in this class of business in the future rather than as a means of recouping past losses.

The fact is losses have been mounting with such rapidity that a radical revision in rates was deemed essential by the companies affiliated with the national bureau of casualty and surety underwriters, the national rate-making body. The average annual liability loss per insured car has increased every year. In 1930 it was nearly 21 per cent greater than in 1927. The new rates are based on the experience of 1929 and 1930 with an additional 5 per cent to compensate for the higher loss experience of the present year.

Merit Rating

In addition to increases in the so-called manual rates, the merit rating discount of 10 per cent granted to insureds with clean accident records has been discarded. In its place was planned a merit system which would have penalized operators with poor accident experience in varying degrees, dependent upon the number and severity of accidents in which they were involved. Due to opposition from the agency forces of the companies, however, this feature of the new rates has been suspended for the time being. Many observers are of the opinion that it will never be put into effect because of practical difficulties in obtaining necessary information for the classification of risks.

Many of the protests against the new rates come from insurance agents. One reason for this is that certain companies not affiliated with the national bureau will continue to operate under the old rates, thereby gaining a distinct competitive advantage. Agents of companies charging the higher rates stand to lose a large volume of desirable business.

Some state officials also are taking cognizance of the situation. The Kansas Insurance commissioner has withheld approval until the 1931 experience is available.

May Hold Hearings

Hearings may be held in Wisconsin, while West Virginia, not affected by the present filing but apparently anticipating an increase in the future, has just ruled that data to support any rate changes must be filed 30 days before the new rates are to become effective.

It is understood some automobile clubs stand ready to organize insurance companies or associations to write liability insurance for members. Several clubs have already ventured into this field. At best with sound underwriting and wide spread or risk, it has proved difficult to make their operations profitable.

One argument against the new rates is that they will result in an adverse selection of risks and therefore, instead of solving the problem, will only aggravate it. This is on the theory that careful drivers will be willing to take a chance without such insurance while the careless or reckless group will still want protection so as to avoid the financial consequences of the damage they inflict.

The national bureau contends that it can prove the need for higher rates. Certainly the increased automobile accident toll, which in 1931 was 71,400 deaths and 997,000 personal injuries, with 41 per cent of the latter serious, makes out a prima facie case.

WISCONSIN THIRD IN MANUFACTURE OF PLAYING CARDS

Find State Pays Uncle Sam Third Largest Tax on Commodity

(Post-Crescent Washington Bureau)

Washington—Although Wisconsin remains third among all the states in manufacture of playing cards, judged by stamp tax receipts, it has been increasing its manufacture of the commodity which North Dakota and New Jersey, the two leaders, have decreased their totals during the last year.

Wisconsin's payments of revenue to Uncle Sam in stamp tax on playing cards amounted to $701,674.40 in 1931 as against $504,191.80 in 1930, according to statistics announced by the bureau of internal revenue.

North Dakota led all the states in tax payments in both years but its 1931 total of $2,340,956.20 was considerably lower than its 1930, total, $2,807,319.40. New Jersey in second place, likewise showed a decrease last year, going from $905,422 in 1930 to $607,000.40 in 1931.

Illinois in fourth place in following Wisconsin's example, and increased from $302,772.50 in 1930 to $413,970.10 last year.

Internal revenue receipts from tobacco manufactures decreased in the Badger state last year. Tax on cigars sank from $150,751.40 in 1930 to $123,675.20 in 1931, and tax on manufactured tobacco from $34,698.12 in 1930 to $34,253.92 in 1931 while the small cigarette tax collection of the state increased ever so slightly from $12.03 in 1930 to $12.43 in 1931.

Stamp tax on bonds of indebtedness, capital stock issues, etc., decreased in the Badger state by practically 200 per cent in a year, going from $151,857.02 in 1930 to $32,558.26 in 1931.

Stamp tax on capital stocks sales or transfers decreased in the same period from $1,008.60 to $761.94, and tax on sales of produce for future delivery, from $5,564.66 to $2,772.85.

Interesting totals of taxed manufactures show that 48,643,675 packs of playing cards were taxed in the United States last year as against 47,891,217.

These same tables of totals disclose a large decrease last year in taxed manufactures of oleomargarine. In 1930, 10,296,641 pounds of colored oleo contributed tax receipts to Uncle Sam's revenue. In 1931 this was cut to 2,651,820 pounds. In 1930, total of taxable uncolored oleo equaled 311,062,284 pounds as against last year's total of 224,011,466 pounds.

POOR DEPARTMENT FINDS EMPLOYMENT FOR 80 JOBLESS MEN

The poor department, through its registration of unemployed, has found work for about 80 jobless during the past five weeks, according to Joseph E. Schweitzer, poor commissioner.

Twenty-four men from the unemployed list are now working on the N. Division-st. and Parkway-blvd. sewer installation. The men work on five-hour shifts, thus giving employment a part of each day to twice as many men. There are 20 men working on the Locust-st. sewer. These men work every other day. On these two jobs 12 men found partial employment during the past five weeks.

Mrs. Schweitzer placed four men on the underpass job on highway 10, eight men at work rozing the street department buildings at the fair grounds, eight men on the repair of the Lawrence and Oneida-st. bridges, and found snow shoveling jobs for 3 men.

A HOT RECEPTION
Denver, Col.—Always keep a poker in the fire if you expect burglars. It was lucky for Mrs. Nellie Wassner that she had one at hand when a burglar attempted to break into her home. She grabbed the poker, which was red hot, and "branded" him across the face.

EVERLASTING
Cleveland, O.—A perpetual radio tube has been perfected here by Mrs. Clara Quinn, Cleveland scientist. The tube is constructed with the filament on the outside. The heating element can be replaced when burned out and thus the new tube is almost eternal.

Chapter 49
MARKED MAN
HERBERT ALICE Preston entered, gayly, and far brighter of eye than Rock would have expected to see her that day.
"Allie, you—well, I almost said, darlin', replied Rock, suddenly warmed by surprise and gratitude. "Trueman, you're just a day late," she said, roughly. "I became engaged yesterday."
"Who's the lucky boy?"
"Charlie Farrell."
"Allie dear, I don't know that I ought to allow this," said Rock, gravely, "but seem' I'm crippled an' can't very well stop it, I'll say bless you, my child."
She sat down on the bed and took his hand in both hers.
"Trueman, I think you'd make a good dad at that. . . . Does my news cheer you up?"
"Sure does, Allie—for you. . . . I can never cheer up again for myself."
"Pooh!" she exclaimed, in sweet derision.
But a squeak of the door and a deep expulsion of breath from some one entering checked her. Rock gave such a start that his stiff injured leg actually reminded him of its condition. Thiry had entered. She leaned against the wall. She was harelipped and her soft hat dropped from nerveless hands.
Alice gave Rock's hand a thrilling squeeze and jumped up. "Reck on this is no place for sister Allie!" and she beat a precipitous retreat, with Winter, closing the door behind her.
"Thiry—how good—of you!"
"Trueman, are you—all right?" she asked, apparently awed at the helpless strength of him there on the bed. She, too, sat down beside him, and her eyes, black with thought and pain, followed her reaching hand, to rest on the coverlet over his knee.
"Reckon I'm 'most all right—now," he replied, sensitive to her touch.
"Mr. Winter told me everything," she went on, "but seeing you is so strange. . . . Can you move?"
"Sure. All but my left leg."
"Was that broken?"
"No, I'm glad to tell you."
"Then you can ride again?"
"Some day."
"And the other hurt—was that here?" she asked, pale, almost reverent, as she laid a soft hand high upon his left shoulder.
"Lower down—Thiry."
Fascinated, she gently slipped her hand down over the bandage.
"Here?"
Then she felt the throbbing of his heart. "But Trueman—it couldn't be there."
"You bet it is."
"What?"
"The hurt you asked about."
"I was speaking of your latest wounds," she replied. Then she looked him squarely in the face, which she had failed to do before. How tragic, deep with sorrow, yet so changed! "I had to fight myself to come," she said. "There was a cold, dead, horrible something inside me. . . . But it's leaving. . . . Trueman, you're so white and thin. So helpless lying there! I—I want to nurse you. I should have come. . . . Have you suffered?"
"A little—I reckon," he replied, unsteadily. "But it's gone now."
"Has Amy Dabb been here?" she asked, jealously.
"Yes. Today. She was very nice."
"Nice. . . . Because she wheedled John Dabb to offer you the running of Sunset Pass Ranch?"
"Oh, no—I mean, just kind," returned Rock, uncertainly. He was of half a mind to believe this delirium.
"Trueman, you will accept that offer?" she queried earnestly.
"He ever go to—Sunset Pass—again? Never in this world."
"Trueman, you would leave this country?" she asked, in quick alarm.
"Soon as I can walk."
"But I do not want to leave Sunset Pass," she returned with spirit. "I'm glad you don't. Reckon that's a surprise. Thiry. . . . It's very beautiful—out there. Perhaps, somehow, it can be arranged for you. Allie is engaged to young Farrell, isn't that fine? The place. . . . Is your mother leavin' soon?"
"She is terribly angry with Dad," replied Thiry, seriously. "You see, mother was not in the secret. . . . But I think some day she'll get over it—when Dad makes a new home—and go back to him."
She edged a little closer, grave and sweet, and suddenly bent over to kiss his knee where the bandage made a lump, and then she moved up to lay her cheek over his heart.
"Trueman, did you think I'd—hate you for killing Ash?" she whispered. He could not speak.
"I thought I would. And it was a sickening, terrible blow. . . . But before that same night was over I knew I couldn't hate you. . . . And I believe even if I hadn't learned what changed it all, I could have forgiven you—some day."
"What—changed—all?" burst out Rock, in insupportable suspense.
"What Dad told me."
"Thiry—have mercy!"
"Ash was not my brother," she said, in smothered voice, and her hand sought his cheek.
Rising, Thiry slipped to the floor on her knees, and leaned upon her elbows, clasping his hands, regarding him with remorseful tenderness.
"My brother Range beat the others home that night with the news of the fight. I stole to my room, Allie stayed with me. Afterward she told me I raged I was going out to kill you. But that was only madness. . . ."
"I had my terrible black hours. Thank God they are past. . . . I knew we were ruined—that Ash in some way had brought it about. Perhaps my love for you turned then. Allie begged and pleaded and prayed with me. How she hated Ash! And what a friend she was to you! . . . But I want you to know that even then believing Ash my brother I'd have forgiven you in time. I know it. After the agony was spent I was learning how deathlessly I loved you. . . ."
"Sometimes in the night late Dad came to me. Never had I seen him gentle, sad, defeated, yet something better for that. He told me no to take it too hard—not to visit the sins of others upon your head. You had been driven to kill Ash. Some one had to do it, for the good of all and no one but you could. He told me how he had inflamed Ash. Then the fight! . . . Ah, God, he did—no!—spare me. . . . Then came the story, torn from his most secret heart. Ash was not his son, but the son of a girl who he had loved long ago, who, dying, gave him her child. That child was Ash. And Dad said he was what his father had been. . . ."
"I was not yet born. But when I came Ash was my playmate. I remember when we were children. He was always vicious to everyone except me. And so I grew up loving him, perhaps for that. . . ."
"Next day I went to mother, and she corroborated Dad's story. It seemed I was delivered from hellish bonds."
"Something, darlin'—there must be something in prayer," cried Rock.
"I was to learn how you had thought Slagle's silence—how you persuaded Dabb and Lincoln to force Hebbitt to settle out of court—oh, how from the very beginning you had meant good by all of us! Yet I could not drag myself to you. I took time. I had such dreadful fear of seeing you lying in danger of death, bloody, pale, with awful eyes that would have accused me. Oh, I suffered! . . . But now I'm here—on my knees."
"Please get up!" asked Rock, lifting her to a seat, beside him.
"Now will you accept Dabb's offer and take me back to Sunset Pass?" she asked, bending to him.
"Yes, Thiry, if you will have it so," he replied. "If you love me that well."
She gave him awakening passionate proof of that. "Dear, understand better. Dad told me you were one of the marked men of the ranges. Our West is in the making. Such men as Ash—and those others you—"
Sol Winter came in upon them.
"Wal I knocked twice, an' then I says I'd better go in." He beamed down upon them. "Son an' lass, I'm glad to see you holdin' each other that way—as if now you'd never let go. For I've grown old on the frontier, an' I've seen but little of the love you have for each other. We westerners are a hard pioneerin' outfit. I see in you, an' Allie, an' some more of our young friends, a leanin' more to finer, better things." (Copyright Zane Grey)

STEEL REPORTS CHEERLESS AND STOCKS GO DOWN

Motor Industry Befogged as It Awaits Introduction of New Fords

BY CLAUDE A. JAGGER
Associated Press Financial Editor
New York.—(AP)—The stock market again drifted gradually lower today, as reports from the steel industry were rather cheerless, and traders awaited General Motors dividend announcement, due after the close.

Save as it continued to add an element of uncertainty, the far east conflict appeared to have little influence. The Cuban earthquake had a visible effect, for reports indicated slight damage to American property. The market remained extremely dull.

Auburn Slumps Five
Losses were largely restricted to a point or so, but Auburn slumped more than 5. International Harvester was also a soft spot, presumably reflecting dividend uncertainty. It lost more than 2.

Miscellaneous issues of a point or so included American Telephone, Liggett and Myers "B", Western Union, DuPont, Safeway Stores, and Southern Pacific. The market had a brief upturn in the early trading, U. S. Steel rising more than a point, and maintaining the major part of its gain into the afternoon, although other advances were mostly lost.

Standard of California lost only a fraction, on reduction of the annual dividend basis to $2 from $2.50.

U. S. Steel's offer of stock to employees at $40 a share was construed as bullish in some quarters, although it was pointed out in usually well informed quarters that the corporation evidently is scarcely guided by the market outlook for its stock in making such offerings. The offerings have usually been made early in January, save when capital changes or other developments intervened. The offering was presumably delayed this year until after the January dividend meeting.

Motors Watch Ford
Wall-st lacked conviction as to what action the General Motors directors would take on their dividend. While some observers have been inclined to look for maintenance of the $3 annual rate, others pointed out that the current market levels for the stock may be regarded as fairly discounting a reduction to $2.

The motor industry remains somewhat befogged by the delay in introducing the new Ford models. The motor manufacturers have been slow in placing their orders for steel, which was a factor in a slight reduction in operations this week.

"Iron Age" estimating ingot output at 28 per cent of capacity, against 23 last week. The publication also estimated a moderate reduction in January pig iron output from the previous month.

The steel trade, however, are hopeful that substantial orders will be placed by the railroads, as result of the wage reduction.

The weekly report of electric power consumption indicated slight improvement, showing a reduction of only 5.8 per cent from last year, as against 6.7 per cent in the two previous weeks. The weekly freight car loadings, showing a drop of about 10,000 cars from the previous week, was principally accounted for by smaller movement of coal, and was not regarded as particularly significant. The Petroleum figures showed continued piling up of gasoline stocks, about 1,000,000 barrels being added. Copper remained heavy, with the domestic quotation sinking 1/2 of a cent to 63 cents, as foreshadowed by yesterday's cut in the export price.

FOREIGN MARKETS AT A GLANCE

London—Traders on the stock exchange viewed the far eastern news more favorably and prices of Japanese securities advanced. The market was up from one to two points, which also imparted buoyancy to other sections. Gilt edged securities were additionally helped by revenue returns and hopes for a reduction in the bank rate, while investors took interest in industrial and home rails. Argentine rails strengthened on favorable traffic reports but oil and gold mines and metals reacted.

Paris—Trading on the bourse was calm and less satisfactory on foreign news and heaviness in London metal prices. The closing was firm. Berlin—Bourse closed.

WARMER WEATHER TO STIMULATE HOGS

Receipts Last Few Days
Down Because of Zero
Temperatures

Chicago —(AP)—Increased offerings of porcine stock today bore out packers' calculations that a slight uptick during the last two days of the week were due to sub zero weather over the weekend at loading points. It will take several days, however, to make up the shortage of 90,000 in hog receipts reported in the twelve markets. In the meantime buyers found it easy to apply further pressure on prices.

Weak closing prices on Tuesday furnished early buyers with ideas for initial bids today. They offered 5-10c lower figures than the average yesterday. Strictly choice lights and butchers were wanted at $4.10. State hogs to the number of 5,000 were on hand and packers claimed 9,000 hogs consignment direct.

Quality of cattle offerings again fell below the standard that has been maintained up to this week. Volume of supplies was held up so that packers had numbers to select from, but with few steers good enough to sell above the $8.50 mark, some of the outside buyers had to withdraw. Practically all of the strength gained since the middle of January was lost and steer values are back to levels of heavy weeks ago.

Today's market had a dull opening on all classes, even calves meeting with narrow demand at prices 50c under Monday.

Holding sheep and lamb receipts down to a total of 15,000 and none billed direct to packers, gave salesmen a chance to hold the gains scored late on the previous day. It was largely a question as to whether the slaughter demand would continue along broad lines. Slaughter ewes have participated in the general advance strictly choice ones at $3.75 selling highest in many months.

WHEAT RALLIES WITH SUB-ZERO TEMPERATURES

North American Export Demand Improves With
1,500,000 Bu. Shipment

BY JOHN P. BOUGHAN
Associated Press Market Editor
Chicago.—(AP)—Kansas reports of temperatures 8 below zero did much to bring about late rallies in wheat prices today from downturns that followed an early advance.

Decided improvement of North American wheat export demand was evident. Estimates were current that 1,500,000 bushels of Canadian wheat had been purchased today for shipment.

What closed nervous, 1 1/2 cents above yesterday's finish, May 59 1/2, July 60 60 1/2, Corn 3 1/2 down, May 40 40 1/2, July 42 1/2. Oats unchanged to 1/2, and provisions at 5 to 7 cents decline.

Corn was firm at the start with wheat but broke around 1 1/2 but from the top, with May 40 1/2 down, 40 1/2, 40 1/2, lowest figure since Jan. 27. Rallies, however, ensued. Reports of liberal country offerings had some bearish effect. The bulk of the country grain, though was held above buyers views.

Unexpected strength of Liverpool wheat quotations added momentum to the rising trend of prices here. Increased demand for wheat together with larger purchases of flour in Great Britain was reported. There were also assertions that British and European home grown supplies were much smaller.

Giving further incentive to speculative wheat buyers were announcements that Japan had objected to the main peace proposals of the United States and other powers. A fair amount of export business in North American wheat was indicated. Corn and oats sympathized with wheat strength, but were inclined to lag.

Provisions ruled easy, influenced by downturns in hog values.

NOMINAL CHANGES APPEAR ON CURB

Oils Are Rather Dull With Industrials Remaining
Stagnant

BY JOHN L. COOLEY
Associated Press Financial Writer
New York.—(AP)—Nominal changes appeared in the curb market today with trading volume reduced even from recent low levels.

A steady opening was succeeded by a slightly firmer trend during the morning, but the dullness of this movement gave way to a slight sag and the market tended to follow yesterday's pattern. Fluctuations were largely fractional.

Electric Bond and Share was steady to firm, particularly in the early transfers when the issue crossed 11. American Gas sagged and some other utilities manifested a slightly easier tone, although offerings were small.

Several usually inactive preferred stocks figured in the trading, coming out in odd lots of various changes from the last previous transfers. The market for such issues continues very thin.

The oils were dull. Stocks of gasoline at refineries had a rather substantial increase in the last week, rising 1,008,000 barrels to a total slightly above that for the corresponding period a year ago. Oil output gained 9,300 barrels. Recent dividend action taken by leading companies suggests to market circles that although 1931 was an unfavorable year for the industry there has been some improvement and that the larger units are finding themselves in more favorable positions. Nevertheless, it is pointed out that the statistical situation leaves much to be desired.

Industrials remained stagnant. There were occasional moves downward, but the changes were narrow and favorites generally held steady. Newmont Mining was heavy.

TODAY'S MARKETS AT A GLANCE

New York —(AP)—Stocks: steady; leaders rise on light trading. Bonds: irregular; Japanese issues stage rally. Curb: irregular; oils steady. Foreign exchanges: irregular; pasta at new low. Cotton: barely steady; higher cables; trade buying. Sugar: easy; hedge selling. Coffee: heavy; steady; trade buying. Chicago—Wheat: steady; strong foreign markets; bullish government weather report. Corn: easy; easier cash market; increased southwest country selling. Cattle: quiet and steady. Hogs: lower.

Grain Notes

Chicago —(AP)—Less warlike news from the far east and the weakness in the stock market caused a radical change in sentiment yesterday regarding the probable trend of the price of wheat in the immediate future.

Speculative interest in the market both here and abroad was regarded as below normal, and under such conditions erratic price fluctuations are generally anticipated by the trade, as the market quickly passed from the overbought to an oversold condition or the reverse.

The foreign demand for cash wheat was much less active yesterday, although France was again credited with making purchases.

An official Argentine government report said the condition of the corn crop in that country was much less favorable than last year when over 400,000,000 bu. were harvested, a record yield. Argentina this season is placed at 14,402,000, compared with 11,734,000 acres harvested in 1931. The English demand was inclined to be skeptical regarding the report. Buenos Aires closed unchanged to 1/2 lower, with March at 27 1/2.

COUNCIL VOTES TO BUY TRACT FOR CITY DUMP

Kaukauna to Make Purchase from A. Mankosky for $495

Kaukauna—After hearing a description of a three-acre tract of land on East Fourteenth-st by Alderman Walter Cooper, the city council decided to buy the land for use as a city dump at their meeting in the municipal building Tuesday evening. The land will be purchased from A. Mankosky for $495. The council also voted to allow F. M. Charlesworth to purchase a filing cabinet for city maps for a sum not to exceed $250. Salaries for city officers for the year were set.

An explanation of several cases on the city poor list, and the number of applications for aid from the poor fund, was given by R. H. McCarty, poor commissioner. The poor commissioner told of the difficulties he has encountered in his duties for the past few months, owing to unemployment. Nathan E. Brewster, a member of the Kaukauna Relief Finance committee, gave a report of the committee's activities, and told the council that on March 1, the committee will have completed its work. It is estimated that $500 will be added to the poor list at that time. A report by the chief of police for January also was approved. Mayor E. W. Fargo asked the council to watch for projects that might be undertaken soon, with little expense, for the purpose of relieving unemployment here. One major project is being formulated, and a report will be made at the next meeting of the council.

Dr. C. D. Boyd, president of the library board, submitted a report of the activities at the library during 1931. Another report of Louis Wolf, city clerk, was approved.

Petitions requesting the city to include in its next referendum the question, "Shall the city make an annual appropriation for commercial and industrial development," were securing a large number of signers, according to reports of the men in charge. The appropriation is $2,000 for either of the sizes.

Monthly bills were allowed, and the council adjourned to Feb. 16, following a motion of Alderman Walter Cooper.

No one is glum
They've all become
